

SENATE ACTION ON NEW HAVEN REPORT IS DUE

Disclosures of Railroad Mismanagement Already Producing Proposed Amendments to Prevent Such Abuses in Future

TIME IS OPPORTUNE

Senator Norris Will Try to Have Recommendations Included in Trust Bills—Brandeis Part Is Pointed Out

WASHINGTON—Legislation to prevent repetition of the New Haven mismanagement is likely to be an immediate result of the interstate commerce commission's report on the New Haven investigation. The report comes at an opportune time, when the Senate is engaged in perfecting anti-trust bills; and the disclosures made by the commission, with recommendations, are already producing concrete amendments designed to prohibit some of the abuses cited.

Senator Norris, author of the resolution calling for the investigation, says it has been shown that the inquiry was justifiable. Its three-fold purpose has been partially accomplished, he says, and he will do what he can to accomplish the rest. He enumerates the purposes as follows:

1. Publicity of the road's mismanagement and punishment of the guilty.
2. Reparation to the stockholders who lost.
3. Legislation to prevent recurrence of the abuses.

Senator Norris will make it his personal business to try to have the commission's recommendations included in the trust bills. He is making a careful study of it and possibly, with help from the commission, will draft some amendments.

Brandeis Credit Is Given

To Louis D. Brandeis of Boston, now special counsel to the commission, is given in large measure the credit for the New Haven disclosures. Mr. Brandeis, although gratified that the federal inquiry has substantiated most of the claims he has personally made in his campaign against the New Haven railroad, prefers not to discuss the matter at this time. His associates here, however, do not hesitate to credit him with starting the agitation which has resulted in this report, which they regard as one of the most important acts.

CELEBRATION OF BATTLE OF BOYNE PASSES QUIETLY

BELFAST—In view of the situation in Ireland, the Boyne celebrations in Ulster were looked forward to not without anxiety. No disturbances of importance, however, occurred, and the services of the Irish constabulary were not required. Soon after midnight Sunday the Orangemen gathered in Belfast for their march to Drumbragh.

Sir Edward Carson received an enthusiastic reception on proceeding from Orangemen to lead the procession, which took about two hours to pass any given point. The Ulstermen did not parade as volunteers, a single brass band only wearing a uniform.

In the course of his speech Sir Edward Carson declared that when he spoke of no surrender he meant that Ulstermen were prepared within the next few weeks, if necessary, to do what their forefathers did when King William crossed the Boyne and when behind the walls of Derry British communication was maintained and their civil and religious liberties secured.

LORDS INCLUDE PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION IN IRISH BILL

Mr. Asquith in Commons Says He Hopes Session Will End in August and Outlines Program of Business to Be Considered by House Before Its Prorogation

LONDON—The report stage of the amending bill was taken in the House of Lords yesterday. Lord Macdonnell proposed the insertion of a clause providing that Irish constituencies should be so rearranged that each should return three members at least to be elected by proportional representation.

The object of the amendment was, he pointed out, to obtain better representation of minorities and if the present moderate proposals were not accepted there would be no Protestant representation in the Irish House of Commons excepting two members for Dublin University.

Lord Greve doubted if the scheme would have the effect desired, adding it was scarcely reasonable to treat the Irish parliament as a subject for experiment. When the division was taken

COPLEY SQUARE IN PROCESS OF RESTORATION

Much of subway equipment removed—Fence soon to come down

BACK BAY PLOT BEING RESTORED AS BEAUTY SPOT

Removal of Derricks and Construction Machinery Used in Building Subway Well on Way

Within a week, if all goes as planned, Copley square is to be restored to Bostonians. The unsightly cluster of derricks, timber piles and tool houses that have made the square look like a hastily thrown together mining camp has already disappeared. Today the last vestiges of the stores and machinery needed in the construction of the new subway are being removed, and the surrounding fence is soon to be taken down.

It was the original agreement of the contractors with the city that the triangular plot of ground used by them in Copley square should be restored to approximately its former condition when the work was completed.

FRENCH SENATE IS STIRRED BY ATTACK ON WAR PREPAREDNESS

Minister Called on for Explanation of M. Humbert's Statements, but Declines to Speak Without Preparation and Matter, It Is Thought, May Cause Delay

Special Cable to the Monitor from its European Bureau

PARIS—Considerable concern was aroused in the Senate yesterday by M. Humbert's speech, which amounted to an indictment of the military administration and general staff. In general artillery equipment France was, M. Humbert contended, far behind Germany and yet no part of the enormous credits before the House was to be spent on this object. M. Humbert supported his contentions with such an array of facts that something approaching a commotion was produced and M. Messimy, minister of war, was called upon to give an explanation. M. Messimy, however, declined to deal with such important charges without notice and after the intervention of M.

Clemenceau, who insisted it was impossible to close the session without having a full explanation. M. Viviani invited the House to sit this afternoon, in spite of the fact that it is a national holiday, to hear the war minister's statement. M. Humbert's action is regarded in certain quarters as an attack on the President, since MM. Poincaré and Viviani both start for Russia tomorrow and unless the matter can be concluded today the government will be considerably embarrassed since no business is possible while both President and premier are out of the country. It is generally held that the chamber will have to meet again after their return as it is believed that the question cannot be settled in a few hours.

KING AND QUEEN TERMINATE THEIR SCOTLAND VISIT

Special Cable to the Monitor from its European Bureau

EDINBURGH—The visit of the King and Queen with the Princess Mary to Scotland terminated yesterday. Before leaving for London the King handed to the Lord Provost of Edinburgh a letter expressing the pleasure it had given the Queen and himself to spend a week in the Scottish capital.

CONDITIONS NOT TO BE PUT UPON NEW MINISTRY

Mr. Harcourt, Colonial Secretary, Decides Against Governor of Tasmania, Upholding Action of the Colonial Parliament

VIEW IS SUPPORTED

Special Cable to the Monitor from its European Bureau

SYDNEY—Mr. Harcourt's recent despatch to Sir William Ellison-Macartney, Governor of Tasmania, regarding the Tasmanian political crisis has been published. It decides the point at issue against the Governor. The crisis arose out of the action of the Governor, who, on the defeat of the Liberal ministry under Mr. Solomon by one vote, requested Mr. Earle, the Labor leader, to form a ministry, making such request, however, conditional on immediate dissolution.

Mr. Earle protested against the condition and on a meeting of the House, a resolution was carried with only one dissentient declaring the Governor's action to be contrary to the principles of responsible government and requested the Governor to forward the resolution to Mr. Harcourt.

Mr. Harcourt's reply upholds the view taken by Mr. Earle and endorsed by Parliament and states that the Governor has no power to impose conditions on a new ministry. The decision is regarded as of considerable importance and the press generally supports the view taken by the colonial secretary.

PETITION ASKS FOR ANALYSIS OF RAIL COMPANY

Explanation of Financing Boston & Middlesex Sought by Waltham Persons—Objection Is Filed to a One-Cent Fare Raise

SPECIAL RATES SOUGHT

Petitions for a financial analysis of the earnings and operating expenses of the Boston & Middlesex Street Railway Company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, and for an injunction barring the road from raising its 5-cent fare to 6 cents and to 7 cents when a transfer is asked for were presented to the public service commission today by the citizens of Waltham.

These increases are scheduled to go into effect Aug. 3. It is likely that hearings and an investigation may be held, and a decision made before that date. The petition asks that the income from the various lines and the cost of operating be determined in order that it may be disclosed whether the increase in fares is a discrimination against the so-called Waltham districts as against other parts of the company's lines.

The special rates which the petition asks to be analyzed are as follows: Upper Main street to Watertown square, Roberts' corner via Main and Moody streets to Newton corner, Waverley via Moody and Main streets to Newton corner; Central square, Waltham to Lexington line; Auburndale via Crescent street and Bemis to Newton corner; Stowe street via Prospect and high school to Newton corner and High and Crafts streets via Main and Moody streets to Newton corner.

NO DOUBLE TRACK NECESSARY

In an order handed down by the commission on petition of residents of Hough's Neck and Quincy that the Bay State Street railway be double-tracked from Church turnout to Quincy square, the board sees no necessity for action.

CITY TO TAKE DORCHESTER LAND TO BENEFIT TRAFFIC

Instructions were given by Mayor Curley to the street commissioners today to take over the triangle of land at Adams street and Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, to facilitate traffic. It is his purpose to have this land, now occupied by a small building, form part of the street. There are 16,634 square feet of land assessed at $2.25 a foot and the owners, the heirs of the late John Robinson, have agreed to sell it for $5000 to the city.

William A. Gleason was appointed by the health department and approved by the mayor as fish inspector at a salary of $1000 a year. Mr. Gleason resides at 16 Cottage avenue, Dorchester.

CHAS. S. BIRD RECONSIDERING HIS DECISION

Tells Progressive Leaders Who Urge Him to Head Ticket That He Is Surprised at Protests Against His Withdrawal

ANSWER TOMORROW

Charles Sumner Bird is reconsidering his decision not to run again as Progressive nominee for Governor this year. This is the only statement that any of the seven prominent Progressives who called on Mr. Bird this morning for the purpose of urging him to run again would make concerning the conference.

This committee, composed of Col. Henry Kincaid, Lauriston Ward, Arthur W. Glines, Lawrence G. Brooks, Dr. George L. Perin, Representative Alfred McLeary and March G. Bennett called on Mr. Bird at his office after 10:30 this morning and soon after adjourned to the office of Lawrence G. Brooks, 53 State street, in order that they might not be disturbed.

Mr. Bird said to the committee: "I am surprised at the vigorous protests which have poured in upon me from every direction. I had no conception of the strength of feeling in favor of my candidacy, therefore I feel that it is my duty to take more time to consider further the whole situation; therefore I cannot give you a definite answer until tomorrow."

WILLIAMS TALK ON EPIRUS STIRS BY ITS CANDOR

Former American Minister by His Training Is Good Investigator and His Statements About Albania Held True Expose

TELLING FACTS RELIEF

Diplomacy Said to Need More of "Shirt Sleeve" Methods in Order to Bring Greater Amount of Truth into Usage of Nations

Special Cable to the Monitor from its European Bureau

LONDON—A few months ago when the Monitor was describing that quaint, patriarchal government on the hillside at Argyro-Castro, most people were inclined to smile at the idea of a successful Epirote campaign. Today, with Koritza stormed and with Berat Mere, 45 miles as the crow flies from Durazzo, occupied, these same people are talking of the intervention of Austria and Italy.

The great powers have made a sufficient muddle of Albanian affairs to justify any suspicion, but it is difficult to think that Rome and Vienna for the sake of momentary advantage to themselves are blind enough to stake out the ring for an inevitable future conflict between themselves.

It would be difficult to say which of the powers has exhibited the least statesmanship in the matter but it is easy to see that Austria and Italy have shown the greatest selfishness for the simple reason that their personal interests have been in question.

Candid Diplomat a Relief

Again and again the Monitor has exposed the invertebrate policy which fashioned an autonomous state out of a geographical expression. Chancelleries it is true have defended the action with every jejune argument of political casuistry so that it is a positive relief to find a diplomatist so devoid of conventionalities as actually to tell the truth about the whole business.

The horror of the foreign offices is easy to imagine. The diplomatic world, writes the Monitor correspondent in Athens with dry emphasis, is profoundly shocked. Here is a gentleman whose statements are, generally speaking, perfectly true and whose strictures in essence are just, proclaiming his views from the housetops. It is magnificent, as the marshal said, but it is not diplomacy. Diplomacy, as Bismarck once said, generally makes untrue statements in a way that deceives nobody.

Mr. Williams an Investigator

George Fred Williams, the Monitor correspondent explains, has received legal and diplomatic training which has bred an admirable investigator. His crime is the picturesque quality of his language. No one with any regard for the truth can contradict him when he announces what every one knew—that anarchy reigns throughout Albania, but to have added what is equally correct—that the Durazzo authority is an epochal scandal of anarchy, incompetence and hypocrisy, is as unpleasantly near the truth as his description of the diplomatic methods of the great powers as "pulling and hauling."

"Shirt Sleeve" Diplomacy Useful

The simple fact is that Mr. Williams, brought face to face with the horror of the Albanian situation, has asked himself the question, "Do I not do well to be angry?" and has answered it unhesitatingly in the affirmative. A little more such "diplomacy in shirt sleeves" might make it possible to accept ministerial statements without so much reading between the lines.

When one of the present great powers crushed the life out of Polish nationalism in the past, the fact was announced in the model diplomatic phrase, "Quiet reigns in Warsaw." If there had been a George Fred Williams in Paris in 1831 there would not have been so much need for one in Durazzo in 1914.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PROBLEM IN BELGIUM STIRS LIBERALS

Reports That a Compromise Might Be Effected Between Socialists and Roman Catholic Party on Questions at Issue Is Denied by Leading Organ of Former

(Special to the Monitor)

GHENT, Belgium—The Belgian Liberal party appears to have been somewhat concerned lately over the possibility that a compromise might be effected between the Socialists and the Roman Catholic party in power, in virtue of which the former would agree to favor woman suffrage in return for the Roman Catholic party's support of a constitutional revision in favor of universal suffrage in Belgium.

Recently a leading organ of the Belgian Socialists, in response to an interrogation on the part of a prominent Liberal paper, unequivocally declared that a compromise of this character was out of the question, which assertion was possibly sincere under existing conditions, and for the time being relieved the anxiety of the Liberal element.

To a disinterested spectator, however, it appears that the great mass of the Belgian people evince little or no interest in the question of universal suffrage, while the party leaders with their personal interests and those of their immediate followers at stake, are not so apathetic on the subject.

The Roman Catholics, who owe their 30 years continuous tenure of office to the present electoral system, are, quite naturally, averse to its abandonment, while the opposition forces, mainly composed of the Liberal and Socialist parties, are eager for a change which they believe would be to the disadvantage of the Roman Catholics, and therefore hail universal suffrage as a powerful weapon to be used against their common adversary, but neither the Liberal party nor the Socialists are disposed to aid each other.

The mere idea of giving any form of suffrage to the women has aroused the ire of the Liberal party, who oppose such a course. The reason why this party and the Socialists are so opposed to giving the ballot to women is, however, easily understood, as is also the reason why the Roman Catholics are in favor of it; each is simply acting from motives of self-interest.

The Roman Catholic church in Belgium recruits its most ardent and enthusiastic followers from among the women of the country, and it is quite certain that should universal suffrage be accorded, the baneful effects feared by the Catholic political party would be largely neutralized by giving women the suffrage and the party could still hope to continue in power.

On the other hand the Liberals and Socialists realize that woman suffrage would create a formidable obstacle to the realization of their aspirations and therefore denounce any such step as impossible.

RUBBER INDUSTRY HISTORY TOLD AT WORLD EXHIBIT

Prince Arthur of Connaught Opens Event in London—54 Governments Take Part

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—Prince Arthur of Connaught performed the ceremony of opening the International Rubber and Allied Trade Exhibition at the Agricultural hall in which 54 governments are taking part.

His Royal Highness gave a brief sketch of the history of the industry from the introduction of rubber into Europe in 1735 and the sowing of rubber tree seed in Colombo, Burma, Mauritius, Singapore and other parts of the world to the latter day developments.

Mr. Harcourt, secretary of state for the colonies, in a short speech stated that the exports of rubber last year from the Straits settlements, the Federated Malay states, and Ceylon reached the total of 71,000,000 pounds in weight, and £11,000,000 in value.

The first five months of this year had shown an output which would make the total of 1914 exceed in quantity anything preceding it. The low cost of profitable production which was illustrated in that exhibition was regarded with some trepidation by producers in African colonies, but Mr. Harcourt pointed out that both political economy and experience proved that cheapness in commodities increased the demand and also extended the use to which they might be applied.

Mr. Harcourt touched on the other products of the exhibition and in conclusion expressed the gratitude of the colonial office to the promoters of the exhibition.

SEXCENTENARY OF EXETER COLLEGE IS HELD AT OXFORD

(Special to the Monitor)

OXFORD, England—Exeter College, which recently celebrated its sexcentenary, was founded in 1314 by Walter de Stapledon, Bishop of Exeter, his object being to pass students for holy orders rapidly through a course of university training. It has never been a wealthy college but has turned out a remarkably large body of students whose subsequent work has proved the value of their early university training.

Among the distinguished men who have been numbered among its 14 fellows during its later history are the founder of Radley, Dr. Williams Sewell, Dr. Ince, the Rev. Charles William Bosse, a Cornishman who wrote the history of the college, Henry Francis Pelham, afterwards president of Trinity and Camden professor, Ingram Bywater, the learned Greek scholar, and many others.

In sport the students of the college have also distinguished themselves and many Exeter college men have represented their university at rowing.

FARMERS FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY THERE

Building Containing 11,000 Seats Inadequate to Care for Great Number Which Assembled for the Event of the Year

SCHOOLS ARE MANY

(Special to the Monitor)

BUDAPEST, Hungary—Once a year there is held in one of the agricultural centers in Hungary, a national agricultural congress, when all matters of interest to farmers are discussed, and resolutions and recommendations for the coming year are prepared for the ministry of agriculture.

This year the congress was held at Temesvar, Hungary, the attendance being greater than on any former occasion. The temporary building which was erected as a meeting place for the many farmers who were expected to attend, covered an area of 8000 square meters and contained 11,000 seats. The attendance, however, was so large that the building was found to be inadequate.

Especially interesting in connection with this congress, is the fact that any farmer in Hungary, whether the owner of a large estate or possessing only a few acres of land, is entitled to attend and to participate in the proceedings.

Owing to the fact that the greatest resources of the country are agricultural, and all commercial and economical interests are necessarily associated with agriculture, it is only natural that all possible means should be employed by the government to stimulate the development of the various agricultural branches to the greatest extent.

Intensive Work Started

Although agriculture has for centuries been the main source of income for the majority of the inhabitants of the country, intensive cultivation of the soil began only about three decades ago, and this was due to the unusual efforts made by the government, through officials and through the agricultural organizations, for the farmers in Hungary have been slow to appreciate the advantages of modern machinery and the application of improved methods.

Another factor which prevented the rapid development of agriculture was the existence in Hungary of a great number of entailed estates of enormous area. The owners of these estates, possessing very large incomes, naturally paid little attention to the idea of more intensive cultivation. In the course of time, however, it was possible in the cases of many of the estates legally to alienate them and to parcel them out to small farmers.

Every estate thus divided has had the effect of increasing Hungary's agricultural production. At the same time some of the large landed proprietors began to see the possibilities in connection with improved farming methods, and employed experts to institute intensive cultivation of the soil and to put every branch of agriculture on a businesslike basis.

Prince Joins in Work

Prince Zsard Odescalchi is the owner of several large estates in Hungary, and he gives most of his time to matters connected with practical farming. On one of his estates, which consists of nearly 300,000 acres, he has an orchard of 100,000 apple trees, and in order to obtain the best results possible, he has introduced power spraying and other modern methods which have been found so valuable in other countries. Another large landowner has made a specialty of dairy farming, and has at present a herd of over 6000 cows.

The example set by the large landowners has been followed by small proprietors and by small farmers in every part of Hungary. The government has established agricultural colonies in Transylvania and in other parts of the country, giving each family from five to 20 acres of land, with a house and the necessary farm implements, and allowing a long period for repayment.

The system of cooperative banks and agricultural cooperation in general, exists in every rural community in Hungary, and is at the same time a part of one single organization under direct control of the government.

The ministry of agriculture sends agricultural experts into all the rural districts at various seasons of the year to give advice and practical instruction to those farmers who have not the means for employing experts, and the agricultural colleges and training schools, of which there are many, turn out every year a larger number of experts, both men and women.

There is one college in Hungary in which all branches of agriculture are taught to young girls only. The course of instruction is from four to six years, and during this time the girls are taught every branch of agriculture in addition to domestic economy generally.

STRASBURG PORT REPORT SHOWS TRAFFIC GROWTH

(Special to the Monitor)

STRASBURG, Alsace-Lorraine—The official report of the administration of the Rhine port of Strasbourg shows a remarkable growth of activity in the traffic of the port. Its tonnage in 1913 amounted to 1,988,310 tons, whereas 20 years before it did not reach 400,000 tons.

The opening of the Rhine quay in 1902 gave scope for a larger activity shown by its increase in 1913 days by 535,662 tons. Since 1912, ships of 1200 tons have been able to navigate the Rhine, owing to the dredging operations between Sondernheim and Strasbourg begun in 1906.

The traffic of Strasbourg is chiefly in coal, wheat, flour, maize, railway lines and petroleum. Increased activity is also reported on the canal from the Rhone to the Rhine. The opening of the Huningue canal will constitute a further development of the country's navigation.

ADELAIDE HAS BUILDING GROUP KNOWN AS EDUCATION SQUARE

(Special to the Monitor)

ADELAIDE, South Australia—The citizens of Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, are justly proud of the fine block of buildings on North terrace, known as Education square. These include the institute, public library and reading rooms, the museum, art gallery, university, Elder conservatorium of music, and the school of mines and industries.

The growth and development of the state has rendered additions and extensions of some of these increasingly necessary. With a view to making available the ground space required for this purpose, the government has decided on the removal of some of the buildings, including the police barracks, now situated at the rear of the institutions mentioned. The new barracks for the mounted police force are to be constructed near the railway station.

CONSERVATIVE SUCCESS SEEN IN ITALY ELECTIONS

Reaction Resulting From Lawlessness of Strike Said to Have Shown Itself in Tendency to Support the Monarchy

RESULTS POINTED OUT

(Special correspondence of the Monitor)

FLORENCE, Italy—The administrative elections in Italy continue to show Conservative successes and corresponding losses in the more radically complexioned parties. Up to the time of writing it looks as though the elections in Tuscany would show the same results, although, of course, the final returns from the whole province must be awaited.

In some of the election districts the press give the returns as showing "Monarchist" successes. The use of the word is significant, especially as it occurs in a Conservative organ of Chauvinist tendencies, and it has added significance on account of the general strike and its effects on public opinion. It is impossible to use the word "Democratic" in Italy, as it is so freely used in the United States, and to some extent in England, for the reason that Italy is even less ready for democracy than are these two countries.

Theories Push Out Facts

Theories have pushed facts out of their proper place. But the reaction resulting from the lawlessness and intimidation of the general strike has shown itself in a tendency to support the Monarchy, not always with disinterested motives on the part of certain groups, yet with perfect loyalty on the part of others.

In other words, patriotic Italians realize that the Monarchy is a political institution for which no better substitute has been offered, while for the time being, the Vatican is willing to display its

REAL IMPERIALISM URGED IN BRITISH MISSION MEETING

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON—The annual meeting of the Imperial Mission was held recently in the Connaught rooms, H. Page Croft, M. P., presiding. The chairman declared that there was a great wave of support passing through the masses of the people for closer cooperation with the other countries of the British empire.

The working classes were getting into far closer touch with their kinsmen overseas, for there was hardly a workman who had not got a relative in some part of the empire, and, therefore, his interest in the dominions had increased.

Lord Amthill, who was the principal speaker, said there were still a great many shallow people who imagined that to be an imperialist or to think imperially was to indulge in vainglorious boasting and to cultivate an aggressive and hostile spirit towards other nations. To think imperially was to realize the great advantages which they enjoyed as a nation, to recognize the responsibilities which devolved upon them on account of these great advantages, to make use of their opportunities for promoting the welfare of the largest number of their fellow citizens, and to remind them that the working classes of the country were not sharing in that increasing prosperity which was indicated by large trade returns.

Imperialism was patriotism on a wider scale. They had gone back, he thought, during the past eight years. So far from thinking imperially they were thinking parochially and more parochially than at any other period. So far from there being any strong sense of nationalism there were more bitter divisions than there had ever been before between parties, classes, and even religious denominations; and so long as these divisions existed, and they were being deliberately fomented, national spirit and true imperialism could not possibly thrive.

Since the empire existed, Lord Amthill continued, they ought to make the best of it. It ought to be run on up-to-date business lines. That was really the whole of their case. It ought to be organized on modern lines without delay. Organization meant common interest in the matter of protection of trade by which they lived and common action for self-defense. They could not have common action for defense unless they had imperial cooperation for trade.

The dominions would not forever help them to protect their business unless they were real partners in it, unless they had a voice and share in the management. Once they established preference on a business principle throughout the empire they would also establish a solid, enduring and mutual partnership.

New Institution Proposes to Train for Professional Work and Give Special Courses

(Special to the Monitor)

DUSSELDORF, Germany—Dramatic art in Germany is every year attaining a wider popularity. In all parts of the country movements are in operation to enlarge its scope and to bring it within the reach of the lower classes.

A step forward was lately taken in the inauguration of the academy of dramatic art at Dusseldorf. This was the result of a demand put forward by well-known artists, poets and officials of high standing, and it met with the enthusiastic support of the public.

The new academy, which has just published its first curriculum, is intended to give an education on similar lines and with similar privileges to those of other academies of art. The young artist will be given as wide a general education as possible to begin with, and this will be followed by a professional training.

Special courses will also be open to those who do not intend to become professional actors, but are interested in one or another of the subjects taught. The students will get their practical training in the theaters of the town. The new academy is indicative of the earnest desire of German actors to raise their social standing to the level of that of other artists, painters, sculptors and musicians.

Japanese Motives Misunderstood Says New Premier

COUNT OKUMA CALLS REPORTS BUT INVENTIONS

Minister Declares Situation in His Country and China Is Largely Due to Conflict of Old and New Thought

ISSUES ARE WATCHED

(By the Monitor special correspondent)

TOKIO, Japan.—As cabled to the Monitor a representative of The Christian Science Monitor in Japan was recently granted a special interview with Count Okuma, the premier, who discussed in an intimate manner the relations of Japan with the outside world, and especially with China.

"I do not wonder," Count Okuma said, "that the people of other countries find it difficult to understand Japan. Even with our own people, there are many things in this country for which it is difficult to offer an adequate explanation. Japan has now reached a point where two currents of thought and civilization meet. Those currents may have had a common origin, but they have traveled in opposite directions."

"The west has been under the influence of the Greek and the Roman, while the far east retained and developed its own civilization. Now these two currents have met, and in Japan they are seeking reconciliation and unification. For this reason, conflicts will naturally occur before a complete readjustment and reconciliation can be consummated."

Distrust Seen Abroad

"With the rise of Japan, a feeling of distrust has arisen abroad, as to her ulterior motive. The people of the west are reminded of the invasion of the hordes of Attila, and some fear that the growth of the power of this country might be accompanied by a repetition of the invasion of the west by the east. Japan, according to this class of pessimists, is determined to hold the hegemony of the Pacific."

"Nothing can be farther from the truth than such an estimate of this country's motive in developing her national power. The alarmists and an anti-Japanese element would start a campaign against her by alleging an existence of ideas, policies, or intentions, which have never existed among the people or been considered by the government."

"The inventors of the story of a coming war between Japan and America are making capital out of the feeling of distrust created by the idea, which has been put forward, of an invasion or of sinister designs. But it need hardly be stated that war can never be the outcome of the advance made by Japan in her international relations."

"All this feeling of enmity towards Japan is due to an imperfect understanding of the real state of affairs prevailing in this country. Japan, however, is not the only country where the old and new thought are in conflict and are each striving for the upper hand. This tendency is seen all over the world, and is perhaps most strikingly illustrated here at the present time."

Unique Event in China

"In China, a unique event in the world's history has been the result of the late revolutions. The revolutionaries sought a democratic government pure and simple. Yuan Shih-Kai, now President, was selected in 1911 as the representative of the Manchu government, to suppress the revolution, but instead of fighting against those who had risen against the government which gave him the commission, Yuan entered into an understanding with the revolutionaries which resulted in the abdication of the dynasty which had been an absolute autocracy for over 200 years."

"Yuan thus established himself as the ruling authority under the designation of 'President.' Those who have studied Chinese classics must be aware that the principle of democracy is there advocated in its purest form. Political ideas occupy much space in the books of Chinese philosophy, and in the tenets contained therein the principle of democracy is clearly defined and elucidated.

"But although a country where this philosophy was studied as a sacred subject, China was never a democratic nation. Her successive governments were conducted on completely monarchical lines. Those Chinese who had studied in the west and also in Japan, in order to introduce the true principle of democracy in the government of the country, conceived the idea of starting a revolution, and the time was reached when the first revolution was organized."

Yuan Elected President

"They were, however, disappointed after Yuan was elected President. They had succeeded in pulling down the Manchu dynasty, but the government, organized by President Yuan, was far from being satisfactory to the revolutionaries. So the second revolution was started, only to be suppressed by the President's army, with a resultant greater loss of their power and influence as the advocate of a democratic form of government."

"The miserable failure of this second revolution only helped to strengthen the power of the new President. The degree of intelligence of the proletariat in China has not yet reached that stage where a republican principle of government becomes practically workable. Whatever name the government of China may assume, in practice the lack of popular intelligence makes it next to impossible to apply the principle of a truly republican government."

"According to present indications, Yuan Shih-Kai is gradually establishing himself as a dictator. Once recognized as a dictator, the next step will be to make himself king or emperor. This form of government, judging by the history and tradition of China, seems to be more suitable for governing the millions living in that vast dominion."

"China is too large a country for any nation to entertain the idea of subjugating or annexing it. But the interests of the powers being so closely interwoven in China, peace and tranquillity in that country are of vital importance to them. China is now the center of the diplomatic activities of the world."

New Center of Rivalries

"The continent of Europe used to be, and still is, the great center of international rivalries, but in China we now find another center in which the nations are exerting their utmost efforts in order to obtain their share in the matter of concessions. On this new center all the great powers of Europe are concentrating their attention, and it is not only the European powers who are concerned. The United States is also in it. These powers, together with Japan, have their own specific interests established in China, and nothing can be more desirable than a strong and stable government in that country."

"As to whether Yuan Shih-Kai can be finally successful in placing his government on a solid basis, insuring a lasting peace, I am afraid that no one would be prepared to answer this question in the affirmative. Everything in China at present is in a tentative state, and when and how the whole drama may be brought to a conclusion is a great question which it is impossible to answer."

"It is very interesting to watch the issue of the two currents of civilization which have lately met in China and Japan. What will finally evolve from the situation remains to be seen, but it is certainly a subject which deserves the closest attention of the student of human progress, and in studying it the question of racial difference must be taken into consideration."

TREATMENT OF THE NATIVES IN RHODESIA IS DEFENDED

(Special to the Monitor)

LONDON.—Maj. Walter Howard, writing from Chieng on Lake Mweru to the Times on his arrival, as he puts it, in an attempt to cycle from Southern Rhodesia to Cairo, deals with Swift MacNeill's recent accusations against the Chartered Company of ill treatment of the native population.

Major Howard gives several instances which he claims disprove Mr. MacNeill's statements, or at any rate, render them highly improbable.

In 1895, he writes, two Chartered Company's officials, "protected" by a force of 20 armed natives, established a temporary post at a point some 30 miles south of here. They very soon made agreements with the three most powerful chiefs along this shore of the lake entirely to prohibit slave trading, and especially not to allow slave caravans to pass through this territory from the Belgian Congo.

Having successfully accomplished this object, Major Howard continues, they sailed with their small armed force across to Kilwa island at the southern end of the lake, at that time the stronghold of a very powerful chief named Simba, who also had territory on the mainland on the west side of the lake, and who had five times defeated, with heavy loss, attacks of the Belgians who wished to oust him from the mainland. Simba was the principal slaver in the Congo territory.

Within a week of their landing on the island, not by any means permitted without much hesitation and argument, Simba not only accepted the British flag, in so far as Kilwa island was concerned, but agreed to abandon slave trading, after it had been pointed out to him that the Chartered Company had carefully closed every outlet for his slave caravans.

"What," Major Howard asks, "is the result today? I am able to cycle along through this country with no more risk, so far as natives are concerned, than if I were cycling through Hyde park. Thousands of natives are living along this side of the lake in peace and happy contentment, easily governed by a solitary white official assisted by seven native police."

IRISH METHODIST CONFERENCE HEARS PLANS FOR EDUCATION

(Special to the Monitor)

BELFAST, Ireland.—An important statement on the future of Irish education was made at the Irish Methodist conference which met at Belfast recently.

The Rev. Dr. Evans of Dublin, who represented his church on the board of commissioners of national education in Ireland, said the commissioners had held a meeting in Dublin recently, and in view of the recommendations of the vice-regal committee of inquiry regarding primary education, had adopted a new scheme.

Under this scheme, Dr. Evans said, an additional inspector would be appointed for each province. Teachers would get their increments automatically, and grade teachers would have a commencing salary £6 higher than the present rate. Altogether the cost for the first year would be £26,000, but it would eventually reach £118,000, in addition to existing expenditure.

Going on to consider the question in relation to home rule, Dr. Evans said that this sum was not included in the financial provisions of the home rule bill. He would like to know if it was to be placed in the amending bill. If not, how was the money to be obtained? The Rev. G. R. Wedgwood, who also spoke, said they were face to face with a very serious matter if Ulster held out for the majority of their day schools were in Ulster. It affected their property and other considerations. He thought it would be highly proper that they should be prepared for the worst, and appoint a consultative committee with their Presbyterian friends to take the matter up.

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL IS THE GUEST OF FRENCH OFFICIALS

(Special to the Monitor)

PARIS, France.—A breakfast was given in honor of the Russian Vice-Admiral Roussine and the officers of the naval mission visiting Paris, at the ministry of marine. Among the guests was M. Viviani, the premier, and a number of French naval officers.

In proposing the toast of the guest, the minister of marine, M. Gauthier, spoke of the careful attention with which the French government watched the efforts made by Russia to increase her naval power, and said he hoped the Admiral would take with him on his return to Russia the assurance that France would not hesitate to make any sacrifice in order to remain faithful to her traditions, her alliances, and her friendships.

Admiral Roussine, in his reply, said he would report the assurances of the minister to His Majesty the Czar.

KAFFIR LABOR IN SOUTH AFRICA CALLED PROBLEM

Union Parliament Member in Statement on Color Bar Says Conditions Have Not Improved Under British Flag

HIS VIEWS ARE GIVEN

MANCHESTER, England.—In a recent issue of the Manchester Guardian, Prof. H. E. S. Freemantle, member of the Union Parliament, deals with the much discussed question of the color bar in the Transvaal.

Referring to the recent incident in the Cape Parliament when a discussion on the removal of the bar had been talked out, Professor Freemantle declares it is strange but true that the lot of the Kaffir has been by no means improved since the British flag displaced President Kruger's on the government buildings at Pretoria.

In his days, it is true, the black man was not allowed to work an engine, but under British rule he points out they have been prohibited, not only from working as engineers, but also from working as skilled miners.

Mr. Schreiner, brother of the author, and of a former prime minister, Professor Freemantle continues, urged, in the debate on the motion, that it was of the essence of freedom to be able to sell your own labor as you chose. Mr. Jagger pointed out that we are educating thousands of dark skinned men and women, and that to keep them down by arbitrary edict was to make every one of them a powerful engine of disaffection.

Time Called Inopportune

The House, however, the article continues, felt that the moment was inopportune for the alteration of the existing arrangement. This is a matter affecting the Rand miners. At the present time they are suspicious and angry. They would certainly regard the withdrawal of the color bar as a menace, coming as it would, from a Parliament in which they have no confidence.

In recent years that proportion of white men, and especially well paid white men, to natives, has declined on the Rand and elsewhere. The native certainly has great capacity for work. Here and there we hear of native farmers with a pumping plant which they are not allowed to work themselves, but which they perfectly understand.

In Rhodesia almost the whole work of mining is done by black men. On the Rand there are many managers who are incensed against the white man, and, if they could, would undoubtedly procure a more docile substitute.

Knowing all this, the professor maintains the white miner would naturally interpret the removal of the color bar as an attack upon himself, and it is more than likely that we should have an immediate and violent explosion.

Labor Party Attitude

Going on to consider the attitude of the Labor party on the question, Professor Freemantle says it was for this reason Mr. Creswell and the Labor party opposed Mr. Merriman's motion to consider favorably the removal of the bar. The Labor party desires, he says, a standard wage and self-respecting labor. But it is not prepared to agree to a proposal for allowing the mine owner to have it both ways, and the white man to suffer both ways, the master to be provided by the help of the state with cheap and semi-servile labor, and the white man to be left exposed to an artificial competition created by the state. "Abolish your indentures, establish a standard wage, and then drop your color bar." This, Professor Freemantle adds, was Mr. Creswell's plea.

GERMAN MINISTER CRITICIZED IN HIS SOCIALIST STAND

BERLIN, Germany.—Dr. Beseler, the Prussian Minister of Justice, has been placed in a very equivocal position as the result of the action of the Socialists at the final session of the Reichstag recently, when the party refused to rise when the president called for cheers for the Emperor.

When the matter was raised in the Upper House some time ago, Dr. Beseler was asked what his intentions were in regard to the matter, and declared that he did not propose to take any action, as in his opinion the only result would be that the Socialists would be acquitted and that this would be regarded by the party as a signal triumph.

Dr. Beseler's attitude has been very severely criticized and demands are being made in many quarters that the government should take decisive action in the matter.

BELGIAN LEADER TELLS OF FINLAND SOCIALIST WORK

Emile Vandervelde Says Movement Is Making Progress Despite Police Persecution

PARIS, France.—On his return from a visit to St. Petersburg and Finland, Emile Vandervelde, the leader of the Belgian Socialists, gave his impressions of the condition of the Socialist movement in the grand duchy to the columns of L'Humanite.

There are, he said, 50,000 Socialists in Finland. The party possesses 21 press organs, including three dailies. In every village there is a people's house, where the sale of spirits is forbidden. At Helsingfors, where the population only amounts to 150,000, the Socialists have two large buildings devoted to their use. Mr. Vandervelde had the opportunity of talking to the women members of the Diet. He describes them as giving most of their attention to questions of working class housing reform, protection of women and children in the labor market, and other social movements.

In spite of the severe police persecutions to which the Socialists are subject, Mr. Vandervelde considers that the movement is making good progress. There is division, however, in the ranks of the Socialists on questions of method, and Mr. Vandervelde took the occasion to advise them to sink differences of opinion and present a united front to the reactionary forces of the Government.

LONDON RAILWAY SALARIES RAISED

Great satisfaction is expressed by the Railway Clerks Association at the action taken by the company.

NATIONAL TELEGRAPHIC NEWS AGENCY IN GERMANY SOUGHT

Delegates From the Reichsverband of Press in Meeting at Leipzig Hear of Necessity for Bureau to Be Controlled by Independent German Organization

LEIPZIG, Germany.—A meeting of delegates from the Reichsverband of the German press was held recently at the book exhibition in Leipzig, the chief topic discussed being telegraphic communication.

Dr. Rumpolt, who conveyed the greetings of the Saxon government to the meeting, said that every public worker needed the cooperation of the press. He concluded his speech by expressing the wish that the press might be, not only the mouthpiece of public opinion, but also its qualified teacher and educator. These words met with the approval of the meeting.

Dr. Dietz, the managing director of the Wolff'sche Telegraphenbureau began by expressing, in the name of the German press, his regret for the extraordinary reserve manifested by German diplomats in other countries. His statement that people were mistaken in thinking that Reuter's agency were anti-German in their tendencies was received with opposition.

Such grievances, Dr. Dietz said, were only justifiable in connection with eastern Asia, but even so, he said, how could one expect an Englishman to view the world through any save English eyes. His remarks with reference to the agreement between the different telegraphic agencies were of interest, not only to the meeting, but also to the public.

According to this agreement, he said, the Wolff'sche office controlled German news and that of the countries belonging to Germany. The Agence Havas, the news of France, Spain and Portugal; Reuter's office, the news of the English speaking world, and there were also offices in St. Petersburg, Vienna, Rome, etc. All these offices had a system of interchange of news among themselves.

"Although this organization was excellent from a business standpoint, yet weighty political objections could be raised against it, for, in times of political crisis, it was impossible for a country to obtain reliable news when the wires were not under its own control. The great agencies, he said, did not merely accept the news from the agency they were connected with, but had a representative on the spot who worded the news in the way it was wanted."

All the remaining speakers were in favor of a national telegraphic news agency, and for this purpose recommended the enlargement of the Wolff'sche offices. A resolution was finally passed stating that it was of urgent necessity to work for the establishment of a foreign news agency which should be controlled by an entirely independent German organization.

STEPS TAKEN FOR OPIUM CONVENTION TO GO INTO EFFECT

(Special to the Monitor)

THE HAGUE, Holland.—At the third opium conference which was held recently at The Hague it was decided to adopt, with certain modifications, the resolution embodied in the proposal made by the United States to the effect that the convention should be ratified as soon as possible and should become effective on Dec. 1, 1914. The following is the text of the resolution:

1. That this conference is of the opinion that it is possible for the convention of January 23 to become effective, notwithstanding the fact that some of the powers have not yet signed the said convention.

2. That the convention shall take effect for all those powers that have signed it and also for those that have promised to do so, as soon as they shall have ratified the convention. The convention to become effective on the date previously mentioned, namely, three months from the day on which the Netherlands government gives notice of the treaty having been ratified by all the parties concerned.

SEIYUKAI MAY NOT FORCE ISSUE

TOKIO, Japan.—In view of the expected loss of power of the Seiyukai in various districts, doubts are expressed as to whether the party will dare to force an issue with the government during the winter session of the Diet.

Unless the initiative is taken by the party, the government will find itself in a position to support the budget, for there will probably be nothing among its projects at the coming winter session that the government will find it difficult to support consistently with its past records and declarations.

LONDONERS SEE GREAT GATHERING OF SALVATIONISTS

LONDON.—The Salvation Army campaign which has recently filled London, with a picturesque and motley crowd of overseas visitors, culminated in a great gathering at the Crystal Palace.

The opening ceremony took place at the central band stand in the grounds, where 50,000 Salvationists witnessed the raising of the flags of the 18 nations represented. For the remainder of the day and until late in the evening the crowds were busily engaged in enjoying the numerous and various events of a long program which included "A Great Singing Battle," a grand march past, a brass band festival and a host of meetings, rallies and festivals.

The organization of the fête seemed faultless and there could be no doubt of its success in the estimation of the Salvationists and of the crowds of people drawn to the Palace by the interest of the occasion.

NEW MUNICIPAL BUILDING SCHOOL OPENED IN BERLIN

(Special to the Monitor)

BERLIN, Germany.—The newly erected municipal building school was opened recently in the presence of the minister of commerce, Dr. Sydow, the head burgomaster, and other prominent Berlin officials.

Berlin has ever been well to the front in the development of continuation schools, and this is not the least of its excellent institutions of the kind. It has sprung from a small artisans' school founded 30 years ago, and is today attended by 625 pupils; it has a staff of 28 masters and is divided into 21 classes.

The new building, which is situated in the west of the city, has been erected at a cost of 950,000 marks. Dr. Sydow in his official speech stated that, as a sign of the esteem in which the school was held by the state, the title of professor was in future to be conferred upon the senior masters, a mark of distinction hitherto bestowed only in the state schools.

Senate Action on New Haven Railroad Report Is Due

In fact, Mr. Brandeis, familiar with the New Haven affairs, has anticipated the commission's report in his recommendations to the Senate committees on the subject of trust legislation. Had his stock and bond regulation bill, now under consideration by the Senate interstate commerce committee, been law a dozen years ago the New Haven mismanagement would have been impossible, Mr. Brandeis says. The chief provisions of the Brandeis bill, which has approval of the interstate commerce commission, are three, namely:

1. Railroads must not engage in business other than railroading.
 2. Acquisitions of other railroad properties may be made only with consent of the interstate commerce commission.
 3. All other expenditures must be subject to the commission's approval.
- Had not the New Haven been permitted to engage in outside lines of business—owning stock in express companies and steamboat companies, "educating" public opinion, contributing to political campaign funds, conduct of a newspaper, affecting legislation, and so forth; had the road not been able to buy the Boston and Maine, the Westchester, the trolley and steamship lines without approval of the interstate commerce commission; had the purchases of coal, cars and supplies and all other expenditures been subject to scrutiny by the commission, Mr. Brandeis contends that the road's financial troubles never would have been possible.

Analysis of Report

Analysis of the commission's report, made by one who has been a student both of New Haven affairs and of trust legislation, shows the fundamental faults of the road's transactions to be:

1. Banker control.
 2. Manipulation of accounts.
 3. Holding companies.
 4. Influence on public opinion by subsidizing the press and otherwise.
- The various business methods, practices and devices condemned by the commission as evasions of the law's intent are regarded as merely vehicles employed in the carrying out of a morally wrong purpose, and laws prohibiting the use of these vehicles would be helpful. It is believed the complete remedy is to be found not short of making impossible the fundamentals above enumerated.

The closing paragraph of that part of the report dealing with the Boston & Maine transactions is regarded as the most vital in the entire document: "It seems germane and proper to refer to the apparent ease with which the domination of this road was secured to the financial interests of the New Haven without any expenditure by them. This was done by inducing an exchange of the Boston & Maine stock owned by the American Express Company for New Haven stock. Thus by a mere exchange of stock those controlling the New Haven were enabled to extend their domination over almost the entire railroad property in five states."

"Those who at first were merely employed as fiscal agents of the railroads to negotiate their securities used that knowledge in the effort to become the masters in supreme control of the transportation interests of the country. This is an illustration of what has been a most dangerous tendency in recent times."

Banker Control

Banker control of railroads is looked upon as incompatible with good management on the theory that "no man can serve two masters." Speaking to the Senate committee Mr. Brandeis said: "My objection is not on the assumption that men mean to do wrong. It is because it is humanly impossible for a man representing conflicting interests to do right by both, no matter how pure his purpose may be."

"True accounting is the basis of our economic structure," explains the analyst. "Hence manipulation of accounts is, next to banking control, about the worst phase of this mismanagement. It is worse than counterfeiting because it cannot be detected." Stock juggling, as cited by the commission in reference to subsidiary companies, is under this head. Provision in the trust law should contemplate requiring accurate accounts.

The New Haven as a holding company for some 300 subsidiary companies is regarded as one of the most vital weaknesses from the public point of view. Prohibition of this was included in the first drafts of the trust bills and is certain to be a part of the law. Together with the interlocking directorates prohibition, however, its enforcement probably will be largely discretionary with the federal trade commission, the interstate commerce commission and the federal reserve board in their respective jurisdictions.

Use of corporate funds for "education" of the public and political contributions is severely criticized by the commission.

Causes Are Analyzed

In seeking to single out from the complicated New Haven affairs the principal specific factors contributing to the road's financial misfortune, for purposes of legislative correction, the causes are analyzed as follows:

1. Instrumentalities responsible for abuses:
 - a. Holding companies, and subsidiary corporations.
 - b. Interlocking directorates.
 - c. "Dummy" directors.
 - d. "Blue sky" corporations.
 - e. Enterprises other than railroading.
 - f. Monopolies.
2. Practices that should be prohibited:
 - a. Misuse of inside knowledge by fiscal agents in effort to become masters.

- b. Expenditures in business other than railroading.
- c. Excessive payment for properties.
- d. Private purchase of cars, coal, etc., without bids.
- e. Influencing public opinion.
- f. Manipulation of accounts.
- g. Political contributions.
- h. Violation of the laws "on advice of counsel."

The full board of the present New Haven directors is to meet in New York on Thursday. At that time some statement bearing on the charges may be issued.

Professional Directors

Says Senator Weeks May Be Necessary in Future

Professional directors in the boards of great banks and railroad and industrial corporations of the country, similar to the practice in England, is predicted by Senator Weeks if Congress adopts the recommendation of the interstate commerce commission in the New Haven report and makes directors criminally and civilly responsible for the acts of the corporation.

"I am not sure but that would be more efficient than the present system," he said, "but it is sure that men of affairs would not serve on boards of directors under such regulation. It is difficult enough to get busy men to serve now; they make more money attending to their own business and cannot afford to spend the time attending directors' meetings."

"What is true on the New Haven road, as set forth by the commission in this connection is true of nearly every great board of directors. They are necessarily organizations for ratification and not authorization. Every well-organized corporation intrusts its business almost entirely to the executive officers. They are almost always men who have other affairs and cannot burden themselves with close attention to the business of the company on whose directorate they are serving. Their names are valuable to the corporation as directors."

A law requiring them to give close attention to the company's affairs, the senator thinks, would result in boards of directors made up of salaried men who would devote their time to being directors.

The question of interlocking directorates, he thinks, is a separate problem, but he believes they should not be prohibited. A bank director's value is in his knowledge of the wool, lumber, paper or other special business, to make him an authority on credits in his particular line.

"Political Work," Says

Charles S. Mellen of Traffic Board Report

STOCKBRIDGE.—The report of a political tribunal made for political purposes, was the characterization made by Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven road, of the interstate commerce commission's report on its investigation of the road.

Mr. Mellen declared that neither he nor any member of the board of directors of the road during the period covered by the report "was ever guilty of conscious negligence in any matter affecting the New Haven or the public."

"Every act of the New Haven of any importance while I was in control," he said, "was done with complete knowledge and sanction with two exceptions. I am prepared to defend every one of those acts before any tribunal in the country, including the great tribunal of public opinion."

The two exceptions, he said, were the Westchester deal and the refusal of the directors to sell the road's steamship holdings.

"I wish the federal prosecuting authorities would name the commonwealth as a joint defendant. I would gladly testify to the implication of some men who are quite prominent in Boston financial circles," he added.

PRESIDENT HUSTIS REFUSES TO REPLY

NEW YORK.—J. H. Hustis, president and acting chairman of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, in the absence of Howard Elliott, the chairman, on Monday stated that until an official copy of the report of the interstate commerce commission was received, no statement would be issued by the company.

MAYOR ACTS FOR BUSINESS LIBRARY

Mayor Curley took the first actual step towards the establishment of a business men's branch of the public library in the old aldermanic chamber at city hall when he delegated William F. Kenney, vice-president of the library trustees, to visit New York and Newark, N. J., to gather information from similar libraries already in use in these two cities.

The plan for a branch of the library specially adapted to the needs of the business men of the city in the city hall met the approval of the mayor when it was first presented to him several weeks ago by members of the Pilgrim Publicity Society.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES SCOUTS

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson on Monday received 12 boy scouts under the lead of A. L. France, who walked from Pittsburgh to Washington. The boys plan next to walk from here to Philadelphia.

ASTORIA SEES BIG BUSINESS FUTURE

Railway Terminals, Municipal Docks and Bulkhead, With Channel Work in Progress, Promise Big Port Development

ASTORIA, Ore.—Business men, investors and others interested in Astoria are looking forward with confidence to development of the city on a far greater scale with the construction of the Hill terminals and municipal docks and the channel improvements at the mouth of the Columbia river.

Among the results of large importance expected from these projects are the shipping from this port of agricultural and mining products from the Northwest of the United States and from Canada by large vessels; coaling of vessels which now go to Puget sound for fuel, and establishment of industrial plants which will mean large additions to the population, property valuation and general business of the place.

Beginnings Celebrated

The recent celebration attended the beginning of work on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific terminals, whence steamers are to run to San Francisco, also the establishment of adequate shipping facilities at Smiths point by the port of Astoria commission; the expected rebuilding of the business district by reclaiming the tide flats and construction of a bulkhead retaining wall, and the opening of the Columbia highway in Clatsop county. On this occasion the people of Astoria and the lower Columbia river district were hosts to thousands of visitors from various sections of the Northwest.

Driving of the first pile for the Hill terminals at Flavel was the first important feature of the celebration. Clifford Barlow, president of the Warrenton Development League, acted as master of ceremonies, and speeches were made by Mayor P. H. Kuhn of Hammond, Mayor George Schmidt of Warrenton, J. E. Gratke, on behalf of the Port of Columbia Commercial Club; C. C. Chapman, manager of the Columbia Commercial Club; L. C. Gilman and A. D. Charlton, prominent transportation men; Marshall N. Dana of the Oregon

Driving of first pile for terminals at Columbia river's mouth

Journal and others. Luncheon was served and there was music.

A train took the participants and guests, about the middle of the afternoon, to Smiths point, where the first pile for the new municipal docks was driven. Here Vice-President G. Wingate of the port of Astoria commission introduced F. J. Walsh, the engineer in charge, who spoke for the port commission and outlined the plans for the Columbia river improvement.

Flats to Be Reclaimed

Once more the company proceeded, some by train and others by automobiles, to the foot of Ninth street to see the first pile driven in the work for the reclamation of the tide flats. Chairman W. C. Logan of the reclamation service was in charge here. The day's festivities closed with a buffet luncheon in the evening at the Weinhard-Astoria when speeches were made by many prominent men.

The municipal dock development when completed will provide 6000 feet of waterfront, and the piers are to be long enough to accommodate the largest vessels that can pass through the Panama canal. Slip 1 is to be 400 feet wide at the entrance, narrowing to 250 feet at the land end, thus being designed to facilitate the entrance of vessels under adverse conditions. Slip 2 is to be 270 feet wide the entire length.

Space for 3700 lineal feet of docks and warehouses is provided for in the plans. The warehouses are to be 90 feet wide, one and two stories, with ample trackage facilities. There is to be storage capacity for 20,000 tons of coal and handling equipment; a cold storage building for fruit shipments from the Columbia river valley, a grain elevator and river boat landings.

First Unit Under Way

The first unit, which has been begun, includes a dock and warehouse 90x1100 feet along the west side, and a dock 100x600 feet across the north end of pier 1. The buildings will be well lighted and equipped with automatic sprinklers and mechanical freight handling devices. Much benefit to shipping is foreseen in the coaling facilities, lack of which has been a serious handicap.

At present it is no uncommon occurrence for a ship to load on the river and then proceed to Puget sound for the sole purpose of taking on coal. It is proposed to compete with Puget sound and British Columbia in coal prices. The coal handling equipment will be a modified form of the traveling bridge crane, which has been developed for handling coal and ore on the Great lakes. This equipment has a loading capacity of 2400 tons, and an unloading capacity of 1800 tons per 10-hour day.

A bulkhead will be built around the entire property, the material dredged from the slips being used for filling.

MUSIC FESTIVAL TO OPEN AT HOME OF MACDOWELL

PETERBORO, N. H.—The MacDowell festival will be held Aug. 19 to 23 at the town hall and on the pageant stage at the farm which was Edward MacDowell's summer estate.

Works to be presented include "Youth Will Dance," a play by Ferdinand Reyher, in which the people of the neighborhood will take part, and "Pan and the Star," a pantomime by Joseph Lindon Smith, music by Edward Burlingame Hill.

Haydn's "Creation" will also be given by a large chorus directed by E. G. Hood of Nashua, N. H., and the Boston festival orchestra.

SEEK A PRICE FOR PISCATAQUA SPAN

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—The officials of the Boston & Maine railroad and the commissioners of Rockingham county, N. H., and York county, Me., are still considering the sale of the Piscataqua river toll bridge between this city and Kittery, and the matter appears to be tied up until the next meeting of the railroad directors. The county officials are not satisfied with the price, $137,400, submitted by Attorney Snow for the railroad, and the matter may receive the attention of the courts.

TOURS IN PROGRAM OF UNIVERSALISTS

Two excursions are scheduled for the delegates to the Universalist Young People's Christian Union, one today to Nantasket beach, where a shore dinner is planned, and one tomorrow by electric cars to Concord and Lexington, where places of historic interest will be visited. Los Angeles was announced yesterday as the convention city for next year.

WOMEN ON POLICE DUTY IN THEATERS

MARLBORO.—Miss Elizabeth Fisher, who with Miss Mary E. Cutter was appointed a police officer by Mayor O'Halloran a week ago, was qualified Monday night as a member of the police department by the city clerk.

Mayor O'Halloran said tonight that he would give the women authority to enter all theaters and other places of amusement in the city.

BRIGADE AND GADETS KEPT ON THE GO BY OFFICERS

LAKEVILLE, Mass.—Instruction by squads and by companies comprises the military exercises today for the second brigade, M. V. M., now camping here, individual and company work having been given yesterday under the direction of regular military officers, attached to the brigade headquarters. Thursday night the men will pitch a camp and cook their own meals.

Several wireless stations have been set up and telephone lines furnish communication between different parts of the camp.

Mrs. Calash Bourne Catlin, en route from Boston to New York in the interest of woman suffrage, visited the camp last night. She was given permission to address the soldiers by General Sweetser.

HINGHAM, Mass.—Supplies were issued to the members of the first corps of cadets today and the command was ordered into the field for the night. A war game is to be worked out lasting until Wednesday. This evening a concert is to be given by the corps band. Instruction in cooking was the program for the tour of duty at the camp yesterday.

Two provisional battalions were formed under command of Capt. Harold Estey and Capt. Porter B. Chase. The former led his "Blue" force to Pleasant View beach, where stores were obtained. It was his task to see the supplies loaded on transports despite the effort of the "Red" detachment to prevent, and he succeeded.

The "Reds" marched from Assinippi, a village in Hanover township, and were repulsed.

ARGENTINE CORN ON MARKET HERE FOR FIRST TIME

One Hundred Thousand Bushels Are Unloading at Hoosac Tunnel for Distribution in Country

Argentine corn, the first ever sold in Boston, was put on the market today at 75 cents per bushel, f. o. b. at Hoosac tunnel docks, against 81 cents per bushel for Chicago corn in the local market.

A. I. Marigold, Boston Chamber of bushels of Argentine corn today from holds of the British steamer Asuncion de Larriaga, which arrived Sunday from Buenos Aires. It is the first cargo ever sold in Boston, and can be shipped to almost any point in New England and sell at lower quotations than Chicago corn. The grain is of high grade, being small orange kernels of a quality much resembling New England corn.

Importation of Argentine corn is expected to become a factor of local commerce, if success attends this "experimental" shipment. The corn is bagged, as it is said that there are no facilities for discharging corn in bulk, at this port.

OREGON PETITION FOR PROHIBITION HAS 35,032 NAMES

SALEM, Ore.—A petition which establishes a new record for number of signatures secured, for the initiation of a state constitutional prohibition amendment, was that filed with Secretary of State Oleott. The petition contains 35,032 names, signatures having been obtained in every county in the state, the Capital Journal notes.

Mrs. F. S. Myers, wife of the Portland postmaster, filed the petition on behalf of the ten initiators and a committee of 100, which will lead the fight to make Oregon "dry" at the November election. The initiators are: Joseph H. Albert, Salem; G. H. Billings, Ashland; P. J. Brix, Astoria; Leslie Butler, Hood River; Dr. R. C. Coffey, Portland; Mrs. Frederick Eggert, Portland; William T. Foster, Portland; Louis P. Myers, Portland; Alfred C. Schmitt, Albany, and J. R. Wilson, Portland.

If the amendment is approved by the people the "home rule" law is automatically repealed and the state will become "dry" Jan. 1, 1916.

WOMEN'S CLUBS PLAN SALEM AID

At the council meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, held at the Hotel Vendome this morning, it was announced that $900 had been received for Salem relief work and that more was promised. The federation will first assist such members of the federated clubs of Salem as are in need. A special committee was appointed. Mrs. Esther Andrews of Brookline, a member of the legislative committee of the federation, has already carried on considerable investigation of conditions in Salem.

CLERK NELSON TAKES OFFICE

William Nelson, deputy clerk of the United States district court for 16 years, was sworn in as clerk by Judge Morton in the district court yesterday. He succeeds Gen. Charles K. Darling, who has been appointed a referee in bankruptcy to sit with Referee James M. Olmstead in Suffolk county. The inauguration exercises were witnessed by the office force and other attaches in the federal building.

SUFFRAGISTS MAKE PLEA IN SWANSEA

Mrs. Frederick E. Bagley, president of the Norwood Equal Suffrage Association and Massachusetts member of the congressional committee, Mrs. Gertrude Newell of Brookline, Miss Eleanor O'Brien of Newton and Miss Emily Fisher of Norwood will join Mrs. Wenona O. Pinkham, Mrs. Ralph McDaniel and Miss Jennie Lotman, who are now doing campaign work for equal suffrage in Bristol county, on Thursday at Westport.

The suffragists will be at Swansea tonight and at Freetown tomorrow. The campaign will continue another week.

DEMOCRATS PLAN TO SHUN TREATIES

WASHINGTON.—Senate Democrats are determined to keep out of the Senate public discussion of the Nicaraguan and Colombian treaties. Senator Smith planned to tell in detail information he has on these subjects, but Senator Stone informed him that he would move to go into executive session at the first mention of Nicaragua or Colombia. The majority could do this, for such a motion is not debatable.

SENATOR JONES A CANDIDATE OLYMPIA, Wash.—Senator Wesley L. Jones filed with the secretary of state on Monday his declaration of candidacy to succeed himself in the United States Senate.

PUBLIC HEARING TO BE GIVEN ON LIGHT CONTRACT

Protests Against Proposed Ten-Year Agreement With the Edison Company to Be Heard by City Council Thursday Night

NO ACTION TILL AUG. 10

Protests against the proposed 10-year city street electric lighting contract voiced by representatives of various labor unions which held up the acceptance of the contract by the city council will be given a hearing in the presence of the council, representatives of the finance commission and Thomas W. Byrne, the union expert, and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company with whom the contract is drawn, in the old aldermanic chamber Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

Regardless of the result of the hearing no action can be taken until Aug. 10, which was the date set for the next council meeting because several of the members desire a vacation and it was voted not to take action in their absence. H. M. Comerford, president of the Stationary Engineers Union, 263, claiming to represent 25 other unions with 80,000 members, was spokesman for the opposition and read a report from Mr. Byrne, disputing the figures furnished by the officials of the Edison company.

Mayor Gives Luncheon

Yesterday's meeting of the city council followed a luncheon to the members by the mayor at the Parker House and it was stated at the meeting that the mayor would send in at the next meeting an order for the taking of land on the Huntington entrance side of the Forsyth Dental Infirmary for park purposes. The land is owned by former Governor Foss who holds it at $167,000. The assessed valuation is $92,000. Under the law the city cannot pay more than $115,000 which is 25 per cent over the assessed valuation.

The council accepted the legislative act giving the widow of former Police Inspector Norton a pension of $1200 as long as she remains unmarried.

The council voted to turn over to the park commission the total revenue of $104,000 for zoo, aquarium and park maintenance.

The order for a copper roof to replace the tar roof on the Parkman bandstand on the common was referred to Park Commissioner Dillon for further information.

"Three-Deckers" Eliminated

The fire hazard committee reported against the order for the repeal of the building limits. The report was accepted. This means that within the limits advantage cannot be taken of the recent legislation until it becomes effective Oct. 7 and that the "three-decker" is eliminated permanently from within the building limits. Councilman Woods of Brighton tried to have that section exempted, at once on the ground that the legislative act would make it go later, but the council saw different, as the passage of Councilman Woods' order would have permitted "three-deckers" in any part of the city except within the old building limits. The new act provides for one and two-family houses of third class construction anywhere outside the building limits as they were before Sept. 22, 1913, but excludes the three-family structures. The petition of Patrolman Charles W. Miller for reimbursement of $216 for expenses incurred in his recent trial was referred to the commission on claims.

NAVAL MILITIA READY FOR ACTION

PORTLAND, Me.—The torpedo boats Rogers, McDonough and Dupont came into the harbor on Monday with 65 members of the Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut militia on board. The training ships Chicago, Adams and Gloucester, with 800 of the militiamen of the same states, proceeded on to Bar Harbor. The torpedo boats sail for Bath in the morning and will return Thursday to plan a defense of Portland harbor against the training-ship fleet, which will return to make an attack on Friday.

CINCINNATI CLUB FURTHERED CINCINNATI.—Headway in the work of securing the new building for the Business Men's Club was made when the board of directors appointed the finance committee and the building committee, the Times-Star reports.

KAISER SPEAKS AT REGATTA DINNER

Zeppelin L III. flying directly over the imperial yacht during the festivities at Kiel, Germany

KIEL, Germany.—The speech made by the Kaiser at the annual regatta dinner during the Kiel week has received much attention in the press. He had, he said, been glad to note how much sport was developing in Germany; the chief object should be, not to train a few first-class sportsmen, but to elevate the masses. The launch of the Bismarck included more than the mere act of naming a boat, it was a national celebration.

All the daily strivings, all envy and all petty trifles, were for the moment lost in the memory of the times of those great men, the Kaiser and his iron counselor, Bismarck. "We should," the Kaiser concluded, "so live that we shall be in a position to say with the iron chancellor, 'We Germans fear God and nothing else in the world.'"

Shortly after his arrival at Kiel, the Kaiser received the English admiral and other officers on board the Hohenzollern. The following day the officers were invited to dinner by His Majesty. The relations between the officers and crews of the two fleets were most friendly, and many festivities were arranged for the English guests.

In the course of a speech made by the English Admiral Sir George Warrender, at a reception in the Kiel town hall, he stated that he and his officers were overwhelmed with the hospitality they had received from the German navy. He was, he said, in agreement with the Oberbürgermeister in thinking that the future of the two countries lay in peaceful competition.

In reply, Lord High Admiral von Koebe stated that Nelson was the prototype of all seamen. The friendly feelings between the English and German navies could never be effaced. The admiral then called upon all those officers who were present to give three cheers for the furtherance of good fellowship between the two navies.

The speech made by the British ambassador to St. Petersburg on the occasion of the visit of the British fleet to Russia, has been widely discussed in the German press. The Berliner Tageblatt repeats that the time was ripe for a firm agreement between Russia and England had he not considered the conclusion of such an agreement to be certain. Most of the papers warn the country that Germany should not expect too much from the English visit.

GEN. GONZALES TO COMMAND BEFORE SAN LUIS POTOSI

SALTILLO.—Skirmishing between the advance guard of the Constitutional army and Federal outposts at San Luis Potosi is already in progress, according to advices received today.

The general assault on that stronghold will not be ordered, however, until Gen. Pablo Gonzalez arrives from Saltillo and takes command.

From Guadalajara word came today that General Obregon will start the main body of his Constitutional army eastward toward Mexico City in a few days.

SWEDISH MINISTER CONFIRMED

MILLS OFFER SEVERAL JOBS FOR IDLE SALEM WORKMEN

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of Labor Wilson today received replies to some of the telegrams sent out to industrial centers yesterday seeking employment for the idle people of Salem, Mass.

Replies have come from a few textile mills in New England saying that from six to 30 operatives in a place may be given work. No word has been received from boot and shoe manufacturers. More telegrams are going out today from the department as rapidly as the division of information can supply names of prospective employers.

On account of a cabinet meeting today Secretary Wilson could not take up the Salem matter himself and his assistants preferred to keep the telegrams confidential until released by the secretary.

Prompt action was urged by many citizens of Salem who met in Ames memorial hall at Salem last night to aid the rebuilding commission in its plans.

The speakers were: John M. Raymond, J. P. Heiburn, William F. Cass, former

U. S. to Treat Informally With Successor to Huerta if Latter Resigns, But Only Pending Transfer of Mexican Power

VILLA VIEW IS GIVEN

WASHINGTON.—The Brazilian minister to Mexico, who is caring for the interests of the United States in that country, telegraphed to the state department Monday that the resignation of General Huerta in favor of Francisco Carbajal, the newly appointed minister of foreign affairs, was expected today or Wednesday.

Minister Suarez of Chile, one of the three mediators, anticipating the retirement of Huerta, sought in an informal talk with Secretary Bryan to learn what the attitude of the United States would be toward the Carbajal government.

While the Washington government will not recognize Carbajal, Minister Suarez learned that it was willing to treat informally with the new administration until a transfer of power to the Constitutionalists could be effected.

That General Villa is on his way from Chihuahua to Zacatecas to take command of his division and prepare for the advance through Aguas Calientes to Queretaro, where he will form a juncture with the armies of Generals Obregon and Gonzales for the concerted attack on Mexico City, was the statement of Constitutionalists agents here today.

General Gonzales was expected to throw his assaulting columns against San Luis Potosi today and with that city's capture the last Federal stronghold outside of the Huerta capital will have fallen.

Prepare for Final Attack

General Obregon is in Guadalajara resting his forces from their campaign in the west and running the ammunition factories overtime to replenish his depleted stores, according to the junta. With the fall of San Luis Potosi, the three armies will mobilize at Queretaro and proceed to the final attack on Mexico City.

It is the opinion of Constitutionalists here that with the flight of Huerta momentarily expected and the elevation of Carbajal to succeed the Mexican dictator, the gates of the capital may be opened to Carranza and his army with little, if any, real fighting necessary.

The Federals, completing plans to evacuate Guaymas, according to a message from Admiral Howard this afternoon, have arranged an armistice which will permit them to depart in safety.

That the Constitutionalists will do all in their power to cut off the escape of Huerta and his retinue from Mexico City was stated today by Carranza's agents here. A trusted officer of Gonzalez' command, with a body of picked men, is said to be operating in the state of Veracruz with the idea of patrolling the line of railroad between Mexico City and the coast.

End of Battles in Two Weeks

Asked as to the form of government to be set up in Mexico after the capture of the capital, the junta representatives said that it would be military and would remain until after a conference to be held in Mexico City in which generals of the Constitutional army, representatives of the Federalist faction and Zapata would take part. The junta declared that within two weeks there will be a complete cessation of hostilities.

General Carranza notified the United States through John R. Silliman, personal representative of President Wilson there, that under no circumstances would he sanction conferences with representatives of General Huerta to draft terms of peace. He told Mr. Silliman that only the unconditional surrender of the authorities at Mexico City would be accepted.

Carranza assured him that the Constitutional forces soon would enter Mexico City and maintain order there.

Officials here indicated that while the American government would have preferred to see peace conferences, the United States would take no step to interfere with the progress of the revolution. The Constitutionalists have been informed in unequivocal terms, however, that they will not be accorded recognition if excesses are committed on their entry into Mexico City.

General Villa, commenting at Chihuahua City on the proposed retirement of Huerta and the creation of a provisional presidency, said that such a course would not be acceptable either to Carranza or to himself, no matter who the provisional president might be. Nothing but an entry under arms of the Constitutional forces could bring the revolution to a successful and logical conclusion, he said.

Senator Smith of Michigan introduced a resolution for investigation of published correspondence, in which "agents of the President of the United States have been represented as affording advice to the agents of the rebellion against the government of Mexico, intended to enable the revolutionists to evade the orders of the President of the United States against the shipment of arms and munitions of war into Mexico."

BOARD CHANGES TELEPHONE TOLL CHARGE METHOD

Public Service Commission Has Company Notify Subscribers of Privilege to Ask Operator to Tell the Cost of Connection

TRY METER SOLUTION

Aiming to reduce to a minimum the number of complaints against overcharges on toll calls, the Massachusetts public service commission has requested the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company to notify its 100,000 or more subscribers that they should signify to the operator upon first making the call that they desire to be given the charge for the toll call.

This notification is a compromise with the company, however, as the commission recommended that the toll operator be obliged as part of the service to give the caller the amount of the toll charge at the conclusion of the call. The company objected to this as an added burden, but consented to send out notices on the first of August calling to the attention of the subscribers that they had the privilege of making a request when they called the toll number for the charge.

The commission has several other changes in view which it is now investigating through its telephone division, which is in charge of William H. O'Brien. Just now Mr. O'Brien is experimenting with the use of individual meters to be placed in the residence or office of each subscriber to be operated by him.

The satisfactory solution of the meter question is expected to eliminate the numerous claims of improper charging of calls against the subscriber. Hearings before the public service commission have disclosed many complaints against the company for the alleged charging of large numbers of calls to the wrong party.

Devices Compared

There are two types of meters that Mr. O'Brien has installed in his office and is now experimenting with. One has been furnished by the company and the other was picked up by Mr. O'Brien in Connecticut.

The meter submitted by the company is about three inches square by six long and costs approximately $12. The Connecticut meter, which is being used successfully by the Southern New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, is nearly an inch and a half by two inches square and costs about $2.25. The company proposes making a charge of $3 a year for maintaining its meter. The latter is connected with the system electrically for the protection of the subscriber, who cannot get the operator without pushing the meter button and thereby registering the call. On the operator's end of the wire it is so arranged automatically that no more than one call can be checked up at a time, as the circuit is locked after the call has been answered. It is possible, however, for a call to be tallied by mistake and there is no mechanical means for getting that back.

Service Registered

The Connecticut device is called a service register and fits on one side of the base of the desk telephone instrument or may be attached at any convenient point desired. It is furnished free by the Southern New England Company.

The company's meter and the service register are both operated by the subscriber. In the case of the register, the subscriber gives the call to the operator, who upon securing the party says: "Signal, please." The subscriber presses the push button, the call is recorded on the meter and a metal clasp gives notice of such to the operator, who immediately completes the connection.

The New England Company asserts that the register gives the operator more work than the meter.

BEGIN SESSIONS

AT LAUREL PARK

Connecticut Valley Assembly

Opens With Large Attendance and Promise of Good Season

NORTHAMPTON, Mass.—The Connecticut Valley Chautauquans Assembly opened its twenty-eighth annual session at Laurel park last night with a good attendance and promise for a successful season. Every cottage on the grounds is occupied and there has been a good demand for season tickets.

The opening program was presided over by Rev. H. G. Alley, president of the assembly, who extended a cordial welcome to the audience, and expressed his satisfaction at seeing so prompt and gratifying a renewal of the united and helpful feeling which had made the past sessions so successful. The assembly is doing a great and growing work, which is most strikingly evident when its present extent is compared to the humble beginning, he said.

Contract Let for CITY HALL WORK

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Mayor Gainer signed the contract for the altering and remodeling of the city hall building on Monday. As awarded by the board of contract and supply, Norcross Brothers, the contractors who will do the general construction work, will begin operations upon the building within a day or two.

City Sergt. T. Frederick Chase has had his men clearing out material stored in the top floor of the building, which floor will be made into office suites, and everything is now in readiness for the contractor. It is estimated that it will be a year before the departments can take possession of their quarters.

FASHIONS AND THE HOUSEHOLD

JOY IN MAKING OVER OLD DRESS

That is, if all comes out as planned

What in the line of woman's work is more satisfactory than to make over an old dress and have it come out "as good as new?" Those who have succeeded in accomplishing such a feat declare there is nothing to equal it. One may go to the store and purchase new material and make a pretty gown, but to the one who made it there is a lack of a certain touch which the made-over dress possesses. The especial thought which was put into the latter she feels cannot be equaled by the one made of new material. It has been said that it requires an artist to make a correct gown from an old one, and possibly herein lies something of the satisfaction received from accomplishing it. There are those who disdain to wear a made-over dress, but they have evidently never tasted the joy of successfully doing the work, or they would appreciate the satisfaction which their more practical sisters enjoy. There are made-over dresses which speak for themselves. They tell a story of planning with too little material, and one knows at a glance that they are made over, but it is not with such results as these that we have to deal; it is with the work which shows the artistic touch, whether of the professional or the home dressmaker.

Many women dislike to remodel a garment, and some dressmakers refuse to do it. One reason given is the amount of time it requires, and, as has already been intimated, it is harder to do than to make a new one; but if one is successful, there is a certain satisfaction which cannot be obtained in any other way.

YOU CAN REPAIR HOLES IN PANS

It is easy to repair holes in pots and pans without the aid of a tinsmith, according to the Stockton Independent. Make the hole round by inserting the point of a knife and twisting it. Place the pot or pan upon any firm, flat piece of metal, such as an anvil, a bar of iron or an inverted flatiron, so that the hole is immediately over and touching the iron. In the middle of the hole place a shot about the size of the hole. Any piece of lead will serve if shot is not handy. A few sharp blows with a hammer will flatten the lead and spread it out, filling the hole tightly and overlapping enough to hold it in place. A few strokes with a file and a rub with sandpaper completes the operation. The repair is permanent.

COAL OIL ODOR IS OVERCOME

Living in a town where there is a great deal of lime in the water, and knowing that sandoap and "gritty" powders are bad for porcelain bowls or bathtubs, I use kerosene for such cleaning. This does the work satisfactorily, but it always left an unpleasant odor until I began to mix in oil of lavender and vinegar, writes a contributor to Good Housekeeping. I use about 12 drops of the lavender and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar to a pint of kerosene. The only odor that remains after cleaning now is a fresh and invigorating one.

UP-TO-DATE IDEAS IN WALL PAPER

Quiet old tapestry colors, pastel colors and rich but soft tones abound in the wall papers that have out-out borders and binders with semi-plain sidewalls.

Verdure tapestry effects are seen among the allover patterns. Some in gray, with a hint of gold thread, are especially pleasing, while those in darker shades are rich and quiet in tone.

The papers in grass-cloth effect show a weave sufficiently bold to be effective in rooms of average size, and have the slight luster characteristic of grass-cloth. They run a range of very attractive colors, says the Newark News.

The figures of characters from the Mother Goose fables, quaintly drawn and colored and most decorative, are in a nursery cut-out paper. These are intended to be cut out and applied to a plain, sidewall paper.

A wall paper which may be especially mentioned has a border showing yellow roses with bronze color leaves and pale green ribbons and bowknots. This has an embossed yellow sidewall paper in satin stripe effect or a spray and butterfly design of Japanese feeling on a pebbled goldish ground.

SELECTION OF PORCH PILLOWS

Light and surroundings must be considered

It is now time for the housekeeper who has got settled in her summer quarters to look over her supply of porch pillows; cull out the faded ones and make new coverings. This is a pleasant part of refurbishing and can be done at one's convenience, writes a contributor to the New York Sun.

Several things are to be remembered concerning the colors and materials which appear on the cushions of the out-of-door living room, into which the American veranda has developed these last few years.

In selecting its cushions it cannot be treated like an ordinary room, as the brilliant light has to be considered. The adjoining lawn or garden, with its flower beds and shrubs, is seen in connection with the porch, so the two must be planned together.

Some persons before fitting out a porch completely with cushions test samples of the cloth to see if they will stand sunlight and water. One should never use handsome embroidered or silk pillows on the porch; comfort, not elaborateness, should be the aim.

The covers, if possible, should be uniform in material and color, with perhaps one or two carefully chosen contrasting shades to avoid any chance of monotony. If the materials are washable two sets of removable covers are made for convenience in laundering.

If a porch happens to be fitted in brown wicker furniture, covers of holland linen, with a monogram in a darker brown, is a good choice for both chairs and settee. Dark blue linen, marked in white or a darker shade of blue, makes decidedly smart covers for the porch which has the natural colored wicker furniture and blue and white jute rugs.

One woman has just gone up to her summer camp with a supply of blue and white plaid ginghams, which, with a finish of the wide old-fashioned rick-rack, she is to make up into pillow covers she knows will be cool and comfortable.

Some successful coverings have been made from materials borrowed from the kitchen, such as crash toweling in blue and red squares, and what is called German dish cloth, of heavy, hand woven cotton, creamy in color. This peasant cloth, when trimmed with an equally foreign looking red and blue cotton fringe, is effective.

Some house furnishers provide the porch seats with cushions covered with flowered cretonnes and serviceable chintzes, which are always attractive if there happens to be no adjacent garden of gay colorings, but merely a velvety green lawn.

Cushions that are supposed to be for real comfort on the veranda couch swing should not be of rough, scratchy material, but of some smooth goods, pleasant for the face to rest against.

BETTER STARCH

Cooked starch is much improved by the addition of sperm or salt, or both, or a little dissolved gum arabic. To make a stiffening for black wash materials, boil two quarts of wheat bran in six quarts of water for half an hour. Let it get cold, then strain. You will need neither soap nor starch if this is used, says the Dallas News. If too thick, add cold water. This preparation will both cleanse and stiffen. When starching black lawn or organdie, it is well to add a little black dye to the starch.

PICTURE PUT IN SCREEN PANEL

Pretty models have other decorations

Ornamental screens are especially desirable in summer, as they prove useful as well as decorative. Some of the new screens in the shops are full of hints to the ingenious woman who owns a screen which needs rejuvenating. It is a simple matter to conceal the original cover and, provided the frame and hinges are in good repair, it is well worth a little time and money.

The prettiest models, according to the New York Sun, show some decoration at the upper portion of each panel. Sometimes it will take the form of a simulated latticework separated by a strip of molding from the main part of the panel, or again brilliant plumaged birds cut from wall paper are cleverly applied so that each panel looks as if especially designed. The same idea can be carried out in cretonne, plain upholstery or sateen or burlap being used for the lower part of the panel and a bold cutout design of birds or flowers being applied at the top. The edges of the design are left raw and either touched or chain stitched to the plain fabric. This makes a pleasant type of fancy work for summer leisure and the results are quick and satisfactory.

Where showy results are wanted with the minimum of labor some of the striking new printed linens and cottons are easily applied to the original covering of a screen, the new material being laid on flat over the old and held in place with strong upholstery's glue. In this case insert a section of a plain, dark color at the top of each panel and decorate it with a medallion or some appropriate colored print framed in one of the cotton tapestry borderings that come by the yard in various widths. Easier still, a picture of suitable size can be hung in each of these panel tops, choosing the frame to correspond with the woodwork of the screen or selecting a gold frame which will harmonize with anything.

A transformed screen for use in a country home has three small looking-glasses hung at the top of the panels, which results in a triple mirror arrangement easily adjusted. Below the mirrors are strips of wood into which are screwed small hooks for holding the toilet articles—buttonhook, curling tongs and the like. The side of the screen which is exposed to the room is covered with one of the new cretonnes showing a design of dull black on a cream colored ground and the frame has been stained black to accede to the demand for black in interior decoration.

MIRRORS MADE AS GOOD AS NEW

Mirrors need a thorough cleaning twice each year at least. If not already cleaned at the spring season, try the following method of brightening those in your home. Remove specks and grime, mix whitening to a cream, with alcohol to remove partial blurs and scratches, take off the wooden back, wipe off the silvered side quickly, with a cloth wrung from warm water. Pat with a hot towel, and allow to dry thoroughly, says the Dallas News.

If there are scratches, paint over with the best silver paint and leave to dry, or a piece of tinfoil with a drop of white glue to hold it in place will do. If a portion is blurred, wipe off on the silvered side with alcohol, then paint with silver paint or back with fresh foil. Even a piece of gray-dust cloth will improve the back of a poor mirror. The face can be kept shining always by the whitening method, which takes only a moment and is better than chamois or other cloth.

PARAFFIN SPOTS

Paraffin spots are usually removed from clothing with chloroform. A much easier way, however, consists of putting a piece of blotting paper over the spot, and then pressing with a hot iron. The heat melts the paraffin and the blotting paper absorbs it.—Good Housekeeping.

TRIED RECIPES

STEAMED BLUEBERRY PUDDING

Mix and sift two cupfuls of pastry flour (once sifted), four teaspoonfuls of baking powder (careful level measurement), and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Work in two tablespoonfuls of butter, using the tips of the fingers, and add one cupful of milk, gradually; then add one cupful of blueberries rolled in one tablespoonful of flour. Turn into a buttered mold, not having mold but two thirds full, and adjust buttered cover. Place mold on a trivet in kettle containing boiling water, allowing water to come half way up around mold. Cover closely and steam one and one-half hours, adding more water as needed. Never allow the water to reach a lower temperature than the boiling point. Serve with foamy sauce.

FOAMY SAUCE

Beat the yolk of one egg until thick and lemon-colored and add three-fourths cupful of powdered sugar, gradually, while beating constantly. Mix one-fourth cupful of powdered sugar, one teaspoonful of corn starch, and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, and pour on gradually one-half cupful of scalded milk. Cook in double boiler 10 minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, and afterward occasionally. Combine mixtures and add half teaspoonful of vanilla, the grated rind of one-fourth lemon and the white of one egg, beaten until stiff.

COLD RICE FRUIT PUDDING

Soak two tablespoonfuls of rice in cold water to cover overnight, or for several hours. Drain, add two cupfuls of milk, and cook in double boiler until rice is soft; then rub through a sieve. Put two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin in cup, add two tablespoonfuls of cold water and let stand five minutes; then fill cup with boiling water, combine mixtures, cool, and add one-half cupful of confectioners' sugar, one teaspoonful of vanilla, a few grains salt, and one-half pint of heavy cream beaten until stiff; then fold in one cupful of blackberries. Turn into a mold dipped in cold water, and chill.

BLACKBERRY PIE

Pick over, wash, and drain one and one-half cupfuls of blackberries. Put in saucepan and stew until soft, adding just enough water to prevent berries from burning. Add one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, and sugar to taste. Line pie plate with paste, put on a rim three-fourths inch wide and fill with prepared berries which have been cooled. Arrange six strips of paste across top. Put on an upper rim and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Rims should be slightly filled, otherwise they will shrink from edge of plate.—Woman's Home Companion.

SALT THE MATTING

To clean matting, Crex rugs, etc., cover the soiled pieces with common table salt, allowing it to remain until all grease is absorbed, rubbing all places with it where especially soiled. Salt will even remove coal oil spots, says Los Angeles Express. Not only does it remove spots, but it brightens and renews the colors.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT

Bees and Their Scouts

A little reader of St. Nicholas writes to that magazine as follows:

"A curious thing happened to us last week. For a number of days, we had been tormented with a plague of honey-bees in the house—there were 30 in mother's room on one occasion. I could not bear to injure the little creatures. As soon as I would get them all safely out of one room, another would be infested. Finally I unearthed an old hive that was moldering away down in the barn, scalded it out, and set it up on the cellarway by the kitchen door. The bees inspected by the dozen. The next day at noon we heard the most tremendous humming, and there was a cloud of them flying over the roof of the house. They turned a very acute angle, and went straight into the hive, and have settled to work like 'busy bees' indeed."

Some bee experts to whom the magazine referred this letter made this comment:

"We have had quite a number of reports in the last few years to indicate that scout bees are often sent out a day or so in advance of the swarm. This is not always the rule."

NET PETTICOATS

Embroidered net petticoats are one of the things that have persisted from last summer, says the New York Times. They are made, usually, almost without fail. Some of them are gored a little, so that they flare about the ankles. They are scalloped along the lower edge, and each panel or gore shows an embroidered design. Sometimes the panels are joined with rather heavy thread lace.

FINISHING A HOUSE INTERIOR

Application of acid and oil stains

When the time comes for finishing the interior of the house—woodwork, floors, side walls and ceilings—the wise man will take counsel with the feminine side of the household before attempting to decide upon the color or the finish for the several rooms. The housekeeper who has not given thought to planning the interior of an ideal home is a rare exception, says a writer for the Country Gentleman.

When it comes to the actual ordering of the material it should be remembered that the greatest saving lies in buying the best the work requires. All things being equal, less time and labor are required in the application of stain and finish for the wood trim than in the application of paint, or enamel, and in renewal work one coat of finishing varnish will frequently be all that is necessary on such trim, provided, of course, it has previously been stained and varnished.

The selection of the finish, or rather the decision in favor of paint or of stain, should be made early; in fact before the wood trim is set in place. It often happens that the decision is not reached until the remainder of the new house is completed. As the different woods demand very different treatment, these peculiarities must be taken into account or the results will be disastrous.

For example, if the wood trim of the house interior is of cypress and the owner desires an enamel surface throughout, it will be found a difficult if not an impossible task for an inexperienced workman to apply this. Such wood requires a sealing coat and the most careful handling to make the paint hold, and even then the results are rarely satisfactory.

On the other hand suppose the woodwork is of white pine or basswood and it is desired to stain and finish it to show the figure and the grain of the wood. Again there would be disappointment, for such soft woods are not particularly suited to stain, and of grain there is little or none.

But had white pine or basswood been used under paint or enamel the effect would have been the best, as these woods are especially well adapted to such treatment. And the stain on cypress under a clear finishing varnish would show the fine gradation of color and the beautiful grain of the wood to the best advantage.

Oak, ash and chestnut are all unsuited to paint, while yellow pine is adapted to either paint or stain, though its possibilities of beauty under the application of stains are so great that it is a pity to disguise it under paint, when cheaper wood would serve even better.

Birch is also a paintable wood and when well seasoned is satisfactorily used as interior trim. This wood also takes stain well and is particularly attractive when treated with mahogany stain.

There are two kinds of stain in general use: The acid or water stains and the oil stains. The former are clear and beautiful, but care must be used in applying them to the wood, as they will raise the grain unless the precaution is taken of sponging the surface of the wood with clear water before using the stain. If this is done there is no trouble. Acid stains must not be allowed to stand for any great length of time after being made, and it is not always easy for the man doing the work himself to meet this demand.

The oil stains do not raise the grain of the wood, and when carefully applied give excellent results. They are not so beautiful in their effects, however, as the acid stains, particularly in the lighter shades. Oil stain should be brushed on the clean, dry surface of the wood and, as it "flats," wiped quickly with a soft cloth—cheesecloth is good for this purpose. For the open-grain woods some of the manufacturers make liquid fillers, which are colored and will take the place of a light stain, the finishing varnish, either dull or high gloss, being applied over them.

ORIENTAL RUGS NEED GOOD CARE

Many people imagine that because oriental rugs have the reputation for the greatest durability they may be subjected to all kinds of abuse and neglect without injury. This is a mistake, as the owner of some prized gem often learns to his sorrow, says the Kansas City Star. Like all precious things, they are entitled to a certain amount of care.

Oriental rugs should never be beaten by careless or ignorant persons; in fact, it is safer not to beat them at all, for more rugs are injured through being improperly beaten than in hard service. The best way to clean them is to turn them right side down on the grass, and tap them lightly with something flexible—a rattan, or an old rubber hose cut in strips, for instance, and then to sweep them hard on both sides with a dampened (not wet) broom. When they get very soiled and dirty, they should be sent to a reliable cleaner.

Oriental rugs should not be packed away in a room for weeks and months at a time. They should be opened, swept and looked after at least once a week.

Every hole, tear or worn-out spot should be repaired as soon as possible, for they get worse. Study the form of the yarn knots in the rugs and you will appreciate the "stitch in time saves nine" every time with an oriental rug.

BOYS DRESS IN A DICKENS SUIT

Style is simple and allows of variety of changes

When a new style appears for boys there is even more interest taken in it by mothers than in a new style for girls, for the latter is so common that it is something of a task for one who attempts to keep up with them. With the boys' fashions it is different. When a new style came in this season, mothers rejoiced, for it is one that is easily made by the one who does the sewing for the family, and it is remarkably simple and boyish-looking. Names for this model are various, but the most common ones are Charles Dickens, Oliver Twist and David Copperfield.

This suit allows for a variety of changes. It may be made of one material as galatee, poplin, linen, madras or crepe; or the turn-over collar and cuffs may be of a different color and material, or the blouse may be all white suit means very little labor, and any woman who finds herself suddenly in need of a new costume will do well to look twice at the design.

It could be copied in taffeta or foulard or it could be made with skirt of one material and coat of another and a taffeta coat of this kind could be utilized not alone with the special skirt but with others if the color is well chosen, for the model is a good one for separate use as well as for the costume.

Striped taffeta for the skirt with plain for the coat would be pretty with white organdie for the trimming, or any similar combination could be made.

For the medium size, the coat will require 3 3/4 yards of material 27, 2 1/2 yards 36, 1 1/2 yards 44 inches wide, with 1 yard 27 inches wide for the trimming; the skirt, 4 3/4 yards 27, 4 yards 36 or 44 inches wide.

The pattern of the coat (8276) is cut in sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure; of the skirt (8273), from 22 to 32 waist. They can be bought at any May Manton agency, or will be sent by mail. Address 102 West Thirty-second street, New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

NEW HATS SMALL

Small and close fitting will be the new hat, declare the milliners who gathered in Chicago last week to fix the styles for women's headgear next winter. The new hat will be small and close fitting, according to their decree, but will be trimmed in ostrich plumes, feathers and flowers decorations.

VELVET AND JET ARE FAVORED

Indications point to their large use in fall

July is not a prolific time for new fashions anywhere, but one can watch with interest the promenade of clothes as it goes along the important routes, says a New York Times writer.

For one thing, the fact that smart women are wearing velvet wraps and velvet hats at fashionable resorts shows that we will probably see that fabric in high favor again next season; this theory is made more emphatic by an unusual manufacture of it in readiness for autumn.

All the new garments have a pronounced flare at the hem. We may not have liked the skirts that hampered our walking, but we are not going to give praise to the kind that takes three times more material than the skirts of today. However, every indication points to that style.

Another revival, this time a graceful one, is the fashion for gowns of lace. Deep flouncings are manufactured for skirts, and some of the new frocks have tunics of 25-inch lace and deeper. There is no return to all-over lace blouses to be worn with separate skirts, but there is a wide demand for the gowns of lace in flouncings of different widths built over a foundation of satin.

There is a strong revival for this fashion in white and cream lace over satin in the same shade, with deep girdles of rose pink, Chinese blue, leaf green and golden brown. Of course, one adds yellow. The wardrobe would not be complete this season without a touch of that color.

One of the newest sashes, or made girdles, is of peppermint candy satin. This design has come to the front with amazing swiftness. It is not only used on frocks for waist drapery but as cravats for negligee skirts or silk or muslin, for Panama hatbands, for high standing collars, and for coat lapels.

Muslin and linen frocks also are made of it.

Summer is not exactly the season one would choose to introduce heavy jet, but the newest frocks are trimmed with it, which probably means that we shall wear a great deal of it next winter, just as the introduction of velvet capes and hats foretells the fashion again for that fabric.

Evening gowns and wraps are caught with jet flowers, trimmed with jet bands, and whole skirts are fashioned of strings of jet mounted on net. You may remember that there was a strong movement among the milliners last year to make jet fashionable, but without success. The people would not accept it, but the refusal may easily have been founded on the reason that it is too heavy, therefore uncomfortable on the head. Carrying it on the body is different. For some reason hard to explain, there is usually a revival of jet and lace together. This year we shall have both.

There is no doubt that spangles will have something to say for themselves this year. One sees them wherever smart women are foregathered. They are used in white, in black and in colors,

Horsepower in U. S. Gains One Third in Five Years

This Increase Has Not Been Examined Closely Until Within a Few Months and Congress Now Studies Lease Methods

MEASURES REVIEWED

WASHINGTON—There is in the United States an estimated minimum of 37,000,000 horsepower in stream flow and water power, and an assumed maximum of 65,000,000 horsepower. The present total development of the country is nearly 7,000,000 horsepower, a gain of 1,600,000 since 1908.

Any other business that showed an increase of one third in five years would be closely examined. The water power development, however, has not been closely examined until within a few months. Congress is even now puzzled as to the method of leasing powers in navigable streams. It has the power and the duty. Congress has jurisdiction over navigable streams. It has jurisdiction over those in national forests and the public domain. The supreme court has declared that in the regulation of navigation and of the means to develop it, the United States is a single government, and as to that governmental function that there are no states.

This decision merely brought Congress face to face with the question how that regulation should be applied. There is before the House today the Adamson bill, that relegates the actual control largely to the secretary of war. This is due to the fact that the war department has control of navigable streams incident to the work of the department in carrying out river and harbor improvements, and also due to the fact that the war department is the natural guardian of the defensive elements in the navigable streams of the land in case of war.

Another Interest

But Congress no sooner began to discuss the matter than it discovered that another great department claims an interest. This is the interior department, which has control of the public domain, the national forests and the reclamation service. The interior department would like to be consulted before things are done with rivers that flow through national forests or whose waters are subject to be impounded for the benefit of the reclamation service.

A member of the House, Mr. Smith of Minnesota, has prepared a bill which seeks to compromise the differences that may arise between departments by establishing a water power commission, to be composed of the secretary of war, the secretary of the interior and the secretary of commerce, who are authorized and required to execute and enforce the provisions of the act. There are other differences between the Smith bill and the Adamson bill, but this ex-officio commission is the leading one.

The Smith bill, intended to be offered as a substitute, provides that this commission may grant the right to build a dam over a navigable stream after the engineer board shall have approved the project and the plans. Such permits may be granted to states, to municipal subdivisions of states, or to individuals. The commission shall have power to regulate rates in so far as to prevent unreasonable or discriminatory rates. Where a dam is built and power developed within a state, and the state shall notify the commission that by law it has taken efficient action to regulate rates, then the commission shall waive its powers, but where the business is interstate the national commission and the states may arrange an interlocking federal and state control.

Interstate Products

The latter will no doubt be the character of nearly all plants of any size. These plants themselves may be interstate, but their product will undoubtedly be sold in more than one state, which would bring them under the interstate provisions of the Smith bill.

The Adamson bill, in the opinion of the officials of the conservation association, is decidedly inferior to the Smith bill. They believe Mr. Smith has in a measure overcome the objections of the interior department to its loss of jurisdiction by putting the secretary of interior on the commission. Objections to the Adamson bill, which apply more or less to the Smith bill, are also made. The Adamson bill prevents the public from getting any return from the grants to water power companies. The bill is expected to do that by price regulation, but the conservationists doubt whether this can be done. They think the Adamson bill is inconsistent in saying that the government may build a dam and sell the power but cannot exact compensation for the privilege, according to others, of building a dam for themselves.

The Adamson bill in its present form they consider unfair to the public in that it proposes to put enormous commercial rights in the hands of great corporations without requiring compensation to the public. Mr. Smith has not covered this point, but he has cut out one of the great objections to the Adamson bill, the admission of the so-called fair value theory in case the United States shall, after the expiration of a permit, proceed to recapture the rights admitted under the permit. Secretary Lane, when he was before the public lands committee, declared that he would not endorse a bill which had this fair value clause in it, as he considered it impossible to use. Values would be put too high.

Smith Bill Favors Public

These are the views of the bill as given by those who have studied them.

The Smith bill is generally admitted to be an advance in favor of the public. Mr. Smith will address the house in advocacy of his measure, but has no assurance that he can get it substituted. But he believes that the commission idea will find favor, and that some of the other features of his measure will get a fair hearing.

The question is one of great importance. The country is turning from steam to electricity for its manufacturing power. Power developed by steam coal is local. It is not carried any great distance. But power developed either by coal or water power when stored in the electric form can be carried 200, 300 or 400 miles. It is this possibility of carriage which makes the natural water powers of the country of such immense interest. If the great falls of Montana and Idaho can be made to turn wheels in Washington and North Dakota, they are to be viewed differently from what they were formerly.

The harnessing of Niagara first opened the eyes of the country to the possibilities. That development has put New York in the first rank, but other states have come along fast. Alabama has 1300 developed projects, Georgia 1596, Massachusetts, Maine and Vermont more than 1000 each. New York leads in horsepower, but Pennsylvania exceeds her in number of developments.

The whole manufacturing country has suddenly awakened to the possible end of the steam coal supply or its rise to prohibitive prices. The whole manufacturing country, therefore, is attracted to the substitute. Nature has abundantly supplied it. It remains only for Congress to settle a policy of regulation and use. This is the big question before Congress today, but it is treated as if it were a little one.

WINNIPEG OPENS ITS ANNUAL FAIR

Industrial Exhibit Marks Quarter-Century's Growth of Canada's Western Provinces and Shows Promise of Great Future

RAPID PROGRESS MADE

WINNIPEG, Man.,—Lieut.-Gov. Sir Douglas C. Cameron opened the annual industrial exhibition here on Saturday, when Lincoln Beachey was successful in making his first aeroplane flights in Canada.

Winnipeg has been holding these annual exhibits now for nearly a quarter of a century. When the first of the city's fairs took place 24 years ago, there were less than 25,000 people in the city and only a little more than 200,000 to draw from in the entire population of Canada's three western provinces. Through trains on the Dominion's first transcontinental railway had been running only four years, and it was then considered quite a trip to the fair, even from points less than 50 miles away. Now this event, acknowledged to be the largest fair of the Northwest, draws from a 1000-mile radius and has exhibits from every section of the continent.

The objects of the Canadian industrial exhibition are to bring the city and country together, and to measure in convenient space the products of farm and factory, to show home people and visitors the wealth and worth of the western provinces. To receive its rightful share in national prosperity it is thought essential that western Canada advance along both agricultural and industrial lines.

One of World's Markets

Last year the value of the prairie grain crop exceeded $400,000,000, which, with a rapid growth of immigration, places this section of Canada as one of the greatest growing markets in the world. The Canadian west also affords a large field for industrial growth.

The people have been too busy farming and building cities and towns to give much attention to manufacturing, but the insistent demand now made is impressing the business element. Men engaged in building and trade are realizing that manufacturing can be carried on as profitably as in communities longer settled.

The city of Winnipeg is considered well situated to be a manufacturing center. Eminent engineers lately have completed a survey of the Winnipeg river which shows that there is sufficient water power here to supply the needs of a city of 2,500,000 people, and that in the province of Manitoba there is available water power to supply three cities the size of New York and Chicago combined.

Winnipeg has invested more than $6,000,000 in a hydro-electric plant owned by the citizens, and this plant now has a revenue sufficient to take care of a sinking fund and provide light and power at 70 per cent less than the former price. Or in other words, the consumer gets his light for three cents per kilowatt and the manufacturer from one half cent per killowatt up, according to quantities consumed.

Great Future Seen

This city is now planning the construction of the Greater Winnipeg water supply. Contracts amounting to $14,000,000 are now advertised in connection with the construction and development of this engineering project that is to bring a greater water supply into the city.

The 1911 report of the Winnipeg industrial bureau showed that 44 new industries had been located in Winnipeg during the year. In 1912, 64 new factories were started in Winnipeg. In 1913, 26 new companies built plants and commenced operations here. Besides this, 100 other industrial concerns incorporated in 1913 with headquarters in this city.

UNITED STATES TIMBER LAND HELD BY FEW, SAYS REPORT

Bureau of Corporations From Investigation Advises That Government Dispose of No More of Public Domain Under Present Laws—History of System

WASHINGTON—Ownership of timber lands in the United States by a few individuals is reviewed in the second and third part of the report of the bureau of corporations on the lumber industry, submitted to President Wilson on Saturday by Commissioner Davies.

Two men hold 49 per cent of the timber in southwestern Washington, the report says; five men hold 36 per cent in western Oregon; six have 70 per cent in northeastern California; 10 have more than half in the redwood area, and in north central Idaho four holders have 50 per cent.

The report says: "The main fact shown is that 1694 timber owners hold in fee over one twentieth of the land area of the entire United States."

"These 1694 holders own 105,600,000 acres. This is an area four fifths the size of France, or greater than the entire state of California, or more than 2½ times the land area of the six New England states. Sixteen holders own 47,800,000 acres, or nearly 10 times the land area of New Jersey.

"In the upper peninsula of Michigan 45 per cent of the land is held, mostly in fee, by 32 timber owners. In Florida 52 holders (mostly timber owners) hold one third of the land in the entire state."

"Lush land grants and loose, ill-enforced land laws are the historical background of the concentration of land and timber ownership. A study of the present ownership of 7,370,000 acres of railroad, wagon road and canal grant lands, covering most of the grantees in the map area and a little elsewhere, shows that of these particular lands, granted long ago to single corporations apparently with the idea that they would be quickly sold to settlers, only 15 per cent are now distributed in small holdings. Of 82,500,000 acres granted to three western railroads in the 60's, the roads still retained 40 per cent in 1910."

"The abuse of the general land laws in the past indicates that any lands restored to the public domain by these or other forfeiture suits should not be disposed of under the present land laws."

NAVY SECRETARY ON APPRENTICES' OPPORTUNITY

NEWPORT, R. I.—Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, reviewed more than 1000 apprentice seamen, forming the Naval Brigade, at the training station Monday afternoon, accompanied by the commanding officer of the station, Capt. Roger Welles, U. S. N., with the brigade in command of Lieut. J. R. Morrison, U. S. N.

The secretary gave the apprentices a talk in which he pointed out the opportunities offered young men who enter the service.

"Congress has acted favorably on my recommendation," said the secretary, "to allow 15 enlisted men to take the examinations for entrance into the naval academy, which means the opportunity to become a naval officer, and next year I shall ask for a passage of a bill for 25."

The secretary, with his party returned to the Dolphin late in the afternoon.

TERMINAL BOARD FROM CHICAGO READY TO SAIL

Big Delegation Seeking Transportation and Waterfront Ideas for Their City Off for Europe Today on the Lusitania

PASS DAY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK—The Chicago railway terminal commission and associates, whose duty it is to study terminal, transportation and harbor facilities in American and European cities with a view to solving Chicago's problem of traffic congestion, sails from here today for Europe on the Lusitania.

The commission reached this city Monday. In the first group are 20 men, many of them experts either on railways, engineering, architecture, or finance; six representatives of the board of aldermen, and half a dozen men of prominence in matters connected with railways or education. With them are Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton.

The commission visited Toronto, Montreal and Boston on the way here, and spent much of Monday examining New York terminals. They inspected the Grand Central terminal, then called on Mayor Mitchell, who presented them to Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith. He showed and explained the harbor, the docks and the Bush terminal.

At the head of the commission is John F. Wallace, formerly chief engineer of the Panama canal. The other members of the commission are Walter L. Fisher, former secretary of the interior; Bion J. Arnold, chairman of the board of supervising engineers of Chicago traction; Edward H. Bennett, consulting architect of the Chicago plan commission; Lawrence E. McGann, commissioner of public works of Chicago; John W. Beckwith, first assistant corporation counsel of the city, and Ellis Geiger, chairman of the aldermanic committee on railway terminals.

To assist the seven members of the railway commission and to gather ideas about other things of importance in the government of big cities, five aldermen and the secretary of the city council committees were appointed by Mayor Harrison to go along, and seven men were invited to accompany the commission.

CHEROKEES TALK WITH PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON—President Wilson was appealed to Monday by a delegation of Cherokee Indians to be allowed to live in their own way on a reservation in Oklahoma.

They have already talked with Commissioner Sells of the Indian office and had been told their request in a general way against the policy of the government. They left a memorandum with the President and he promised to consider it.

WESTINGHOUSE STRIKE ENDED

PITTSBURGH—The strike in the Westinghouse factories was ended on Monday when about 8000 men and women returned to the shops. All plants were placed on full time and all of the strikers were taken back with the exception of 200 or 300 whose places had been filled. Half a dozen deputy sheriffs were on guard at the electric works, but it was said the sheriff would recall them.

BONAVISTA, N. F.—Unfavorable conditions prevented on Monday the arrival of the warship Essex with the Duke of Connaught on board and the reception that had been arranged for him was postponed until today.

JONES TESTIMONY IN NOMINEE CASE MAY BE GIVEN OUT

Senate Considers This Step Before Receiving Unfavorable Report on Wilson Nomination

WASHINGTON—Before handing in the unfavorable majority report of the committee on banking on the nomination of Thomas D. Jones to be a member of the federal reserve board, Senator Hitchcock, acting chairman, this afternoon moved that the testimony given by Mr. Jones before the committee be made public.

Senator Stone moved that the Senate go into executive session to consider the question of open discussion, which was done.

Confidence was the dominant note at the White House at the outset of the contest in the Senate today over the confirmation of the nomination. The administration leaders in the Senate have made a number of polls and all have indicated that he will be confirmed with a majority of from five to 10 votes.

It is generally believed that if Mr. Jones' nomination is confirmed, Paul M. Warburg will reconsider his determination not to appear before the banking committee.

Senator Poindexter introduced a resolution Monday which would direct the interstate commerce commission to investigate and report what part Mr. Warburg took in the financial reorganization of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the Chicago & Alton and other railroads. The resolution went over for future consideration.

JOINT COMMITTEE TRUST MEASURE SESSIONS URGED

WASHINGTON—Criticizing the administration interstate trade commission bill on the floor of the Senate Monday, Senator Reed of Missouri, Democratic member of the judiciary committee, urged that the interstate commerce and judiciary committees, should get together to work out the trust legislation jointly with a view of consolidating all pending measures on the subject. Senator Reed's attack, directed particularly to the section relating to "unfair competition," was followed by speeches from other members of the judiciary committee, and later it developed that an unsuccessful effort already had been made by the interstate commerce committee to have the judiciary committee cooperate with it.

Senators Reed and Hoke Smith of Georgia, were reported to have looked with favor on the proposal, but other members of the judiciary committee declined to yield sole jurisdiction over the Clayton anti-trust bill.

PRESIDENT TO SEE NEW YORK BANKER

WASHINGTON—Convinced that his talks with J. P. Morgan, Henry Ford and other business men have done much to show the country that the Democratic administration is the friend of honest business, President Wilson on Monday planned further conferences.

He invited S. R. Bertron, head of a New York banking house, to call at the White House Wednesday. The President wishes to discuss business conditions and his antitrust program with Mr. Bertron.

Charles S. Bird Reconsiders His Decision Not to Run

tomorrow. This much I will say now, however, either as a leader or as a soldier I shall be on the fighting line, equipped with fresh ammunition for the campaign, which will confound those who talk as they have for the past two years of the "melting away" of the Progressive party of Massachusetts.

Each day the list of announced candidates for the approaching political contests in Massachusetts is becoming longer. The politicians interested in the fall campaigns have begun work in their own behalf with rather unusual rapidity after the prorogation of the Legislature this year and the lineup of the three parties in the various districts of the state is becoming definite.

An indication that Joseph Walker, former speaker of the House is to be enlisted in the gubernatorial contest in case of Mr. Bird's continued refusal to run was given yesterday by the taking out of 200 nomination papers in his name. Nelson Clark of Beverly, who had been given the power of attorney to do this for Mr. Walker, stated that the papers would be circulated in the interest of Mr. Walker's candidacy for Governor.

Col. Henry Kincaid stated yesterday that the Progressive state committee had not yet called to Mr. Walker in Europe asking him to accept nomination at the head of the party ticket. Meanwhile the booms for Senator Burbank and other possible candidates for the Progressive candidacies continue.

Latest of announcements in the Republican ranks has been that by Representative Grafton Cushing of Boston, speaker of the House, that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Mr. Cushing's statement is as follows:

"I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. For the last 15 years I have devoted a large part of my time to the public service. I served on the Boston school committee for six years and was president for two years. I have been a member of the Massachusetts House for nine years and speaker for the first three years. I have been president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts and am still president of the Lincoln Club and treasurer of the Boston city committee.

"If I am honored by the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor I will make as hard a fight as I can for the principles for which the Republican party has always stood."

Democrats Organize

The Democratic state committee has completed its organization for the coming campaign by the selection of the following committees:

Campbell, Worcester; Humphrey O'Sullivan, Lowell; John McGrath, Amesbury; John P. S. Mahoney, Lawrence; Thomas E. Dwyer, Wakefield; Charles L. Shea, Somerville; Joseph A. Maynard, Boston; John F. McDonald, Boston; Thomas F. O'Brien, Boston; Daniel O'Connell, Newtonville; John A. Kiggen, Hyde Park; James F. Driscoll, Fall River; John E. O'Neil, New Bedford.

Finance committee—Chairman, Humphrey O'Sullivan, Lowell; members at large, Michael A. O'Leary, Cambridge; Daniel F. O'Connell, Fitchburg; Charles F. Riordan, Sharon; Alexis Boyer, Jr., Southbridge; John F. McDonald, Boston; Harvey H. Pratt, Scituate; Thomas P. Riley, Malden; William H. Small, Saugus.

Members by districts—Henry J. Ryan, Pittsfield; James W. O'Brien, Northampton; Thomas L. Walsh, Clinton; Jeremiah Combs, Milford; Thomas J. Fitzgerald, Lowell; Michael F. McGrath, Salem; Austin T. Cusack, Lynn; Eugene M. Flanagan, Cambridge; John J. McCarthy, Somerville; Martin M. Lomasdale, Boston; John J. Conway, Rosindale; John F. McCarthy, Dorchester; Daniel L. Prendergast, Brookline; William H. Powers, Brockton; Hugh Gaffney, Attleboro; George T. McLaughlin, Sandwich.

To Support Mr. Collins

Judge Thomas P. Riley has declared that he will not be a candidate in the seventh congressional district against Representative Roberts or against Joseph Walker. Instead he will support Edward D. Collins of South Boston, former Governor's councilman. Judge Riley leaves for Europe today with David B. Shaw of Charlestown, election commissioner, and Dennis J. Kelley of Malden. They plan to return Aug. 22.

Representative P. Joseph McManus of Roxbury yesterday filed papers for his nomination as state senator from the seventh Suffolk district. Senator James H. Brennan of Charlestown took out papers for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the tenth congressional district. William H. Murphy of Marlboro took out papers for the Democratic nomination in the Middlesex representative district. Senator Charles W. Eldridge of Somerville applied for papers for renomination in the third Middlesex district.

MR. PAIGE OUT FOR CONGRESS

Calvin D. Paige of Southbridge today filed with the secretary of the commonwealth an application for nomination papers for the Republican nomination for Congress in the third district.

DELAY EXPECTED IN APPOINTMENTS TO STATE POSTS

Positions on Port Directorate and Places on Other Boards Await Action by the Governor

Few if any nominations for the positions to be filled by Governor Walsh are expected to be announced at the meeting of the executive council tomorrow. The Governor says that he had been allowed but little time since the adjournment of the Legislature to consider the claims and qualification of the various candidates.

As much interest centers on the selection of the three port directors at a salary of $6000 a year as on any other of the coming appointments. Three men whose names have been mentioned prominently in this connection are Senator Lombard Williams of Dedham, Senator John H. Mack of North Adams and Thomas F. Boyle, civil service commissioner.

Another candidate is Edwin H. De Lany who is a retired naval officer. Commander De Lany has had a wide variety of service, much of which has had to do with coast and harbor surveys.

He was on the flagship Olympia at the battle of Manila bay, was in charge of the repair plant of the auxiliary cruiser Panther, which made important repairs on the fleet on its cruise around the world, and was connected with the survey of Panama harbor and along the coast of lower California.

It is the Governor's intention, however, to make no preliminary statements as to those whom he is considering. Other selections to be made are as follows:

Members of the licensing board for Boston, who must be a Republican and a resident of Boston; one health commissioner for five years at $7500, eight district inspectors at $3500, three members of the state board of efficiency and economy, and three members of the new state board of insanity at $5000 a year.

DRY FARM CROP IN NEVADA SHOWS UNUSUAL YIELD

RENO, Nev.—That the state experimental dry farm near Elko has exceptionally fine crops this year is stated by Prof. C. S. Knight, dean of the college of agriculture.

The farm has a large acreage of winter barley, and of spring wheat, oats and rye according to the Gazette. It is estimated at the farm that the spring wheat will run 40 bushels to the acre. It is of the defiance variety and yields the dry farm a big price for seed.

The system used at the farm is to summer fallow half of the land yearly, using a harrow to keep the mulch. The ground now being fallowed is free from weeds and in excellent condition. The system conserves moisture enough to mature a crop, but this year there has been plentiful precipitation in addition.

PLAYHOUSE NEWS

For the last two weeks of their engagement at B. F. Keith's the Meistersingers are appearing in a minstrel first part, a number of singers and dancers having been added to make an imposing crescent of burnt-corked faces—over 40 persons taking part.

In all 14 numbers are sung, the choruses going well. The ballads of love disdained (inevitable in minstrelsy) were received with favor, though there is little singing of distinction. This is announced as the greatest minstrel first part ever staged. Is the 1909 gambol of the Lambs so soon forgot? The comedy and dancing were acceptable. Mr. Steele's solo was much applauded.

Others on the bill are Bedini and Arthur in grotesque juggling, Kirk and Fogarty in songs and dances, and Boston in motion pictures, including views of the launching of the Nevada.

"The Eagle's Mate," a melodramatic romance with Miss Mary Pickford, is being shown this week at the Modern theater and at the Scollay Square Olympia. The story is an interesting one, and well directed, the background, Virgilian mountain life, being of special interest. The individual charm and the expressive acting of Miss Pickford exercised their perennial appeal.

The latest Paul J. Rainey hunt pictures opened an engagement Monday with two performances at the Shubert theater. Vivid records of animal life, taken at close range, give realistic descriptions of African jungle life. The zebra, thegnu and the giraffe, among other rare and shy creatures, are seen disporting themselves in their native habitat, unaware of observation. Then there are the huge jungle elephants, the herds of buffalo and, for humor of a sort, the antics of the apes. There are many bird pictures scattered along the reels, and lively records of the natives in camp and on the march.

"The Man from Home" will be the opening attraction of the stock season beginning at the Majestic next Monday. The second week will offer Edmund Breese in "The Master Mind," a law-breaker play for its first time here. Later Dorothy Donnelly comes in her original role in "Madam X."

Visit to United Shoe Machinery Company at Beverly and Stop at Salem Are Features

North Shore day marks the last day but one of the convention of the shoe and leather men of four countries and the shoe and leather fair in Mechanics building today. At 10:30 this morning several hundred of the visiting delegates and their guests left Mechanics hall for a complimentary automobile ride along the coast as far as Beverly. The Salem district where many leather and tanning factories were located will be traversed and the return trip made by way of Manchester.

In Beverly the party will be shown through the plant of the United Shoe Machinery Company. The committee in charge is Maj. Charles T. Cahill, chairman; Fred B. Rice, William Armstrong, Walter G. Lewis, George Hutchinson and Jonathan Brown, Jr.

The Cottage Place neighborhood house, the Daily Industrial school and the Mission church are among those which sent children. A special motion picture show was given in Talbot hall for their benefit.

Members of the Shoe and Leather Finders Association of America, whose convention closed recently at New York, were present in large numbers yesterday. Later in the day about 75 of them, about one half of those visiting Boston, went to Nahant by special boat as the guests of local finders. Among the hosts were Albert R. Merrill of Lynn, J. C. F. Phinney of Lynn, Patrick Nagle and John A. Gardner of Boston.

O-HANA-SAN THE NEWEST CHUM OF BOSTON CHILDREN

Honorable Flower Maiden Is Only One of Many Features in Museum Exhibit That Teaches Young People What Sort of a Place Japan Really Is

If you see a child balancing on his knees, and you are liable to see any number of them in the next few weeks, you may know that that is the way O-Hana-San always sits, whether she eats or whether she plays. O-Hana-San is the name of the Japanese doll in the Japanese exhibit that has just been installed in the children's museum. She is supposed to be a very rich little girl in Japan just four years old. The story of her life and that of her young companions is being told to several hundred children at the museum at Olmsted park every Saturday afternoon. The first was given last Saturday and more about life and customs in Japan, those of the home and the street, the surroundings and experiences of O-Hana-San, are to be given on successive Saturdays, graphically illustrated by the exhibit.

This Japanese collection was made by the history committee of the Women's Education Association and presented to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, but before it was placed on view the children's museum was started and everybody agreed that that was the place for the collection, so it has been transferred there as a permanent loan.

Just Like a Doll's House

The collection illustrates in miniature the life of Japan. Manikins represent men and women of the court, soldiers, philosophers and people of the lower classes dressed just as they are in real life. They are surrounded by the things that they would use. The woman of wealth has near her her toilet articles, books, writing materials, vessels used in the tea and flower ceremonies. Fascinating as a doll's house is that part of the collection setting forth the domestic arrangements of the island kingdom. One tiny house shows the drawing or living room and another the kitchen with its shelves, drawers and cooking utensils. Outside is the rack on which the sandals are put when the wearer wishes to come indoors. The laundry facilities are displayed and also the queer bathtubs with a stove inside. The contents of a pedler's pack are laid out and a Japanese store is an important part of the exhibit.

O-Hana-San, the doll, is larger than the others. Her clothes were made by a dressmaker to the royal court of Japan and are exactly like what little girls of high rank in that flowery country wear. Translated, her name is Honorable Flower Maiden. By her side in the glass case which is her home, is a bag of games and a little case containing her paper handkerchiefs. At the end of the case O-Hana-San's little sister is seen in bed. There are silken coverlets, the top one like a huge kimono, and a queer pillow.

Japanese Tells Stories

As the foundation facts of the Saturday afternoon stories explaining the exhibit have been furnished by a native Japanese of much culture who also understands children, the stories are as reliable as they are entertaining.

Unlike most museums the Childrens Museum of Boston keeps up its work straight through the summer and the interest grows rather than diminishes. The average week-day attendance is 175, while it has reached as high as 700 in one day by actual count. Grown people as well as children visit it frequently and have become so interested that they are offering their services free. A young woman from Jamaica Plain takes entire charge of the insects exhibit, giving one day a week to the work of labeling and arranging. Two high school girls, who wish to become museum assistants are giving their services for the training. So far as known this is the only museum in the country that is giving such training. It is believed to be opening up to young women an excellent field of service.

Denison house is sending a group of children to the museum every Friday morning and it is the desire of Miss Griffin, director of the museum, to interest them in nature study. In itself this makes no appeal to the children. It seems too far removed from their experience. They are, however, deeply interested in the chestnut vendor who makes his appearance on their streets every autumn. Just now the chestnut trees are in bloom and it is a wonder which they can scarcely grasp that the glossy brown nuts which they relish so keenly after the nights have become snappy come from just such feathery green blossoms as those on certain trees near the museum. That is the entering wedge and they listen eagerly to the story of the bud that becomes a blossom, then a burr and finally opens its doors and drops its brown nuts upon the ground eventually to find its way to Tyler street. A tree promises ever after to be a different thing to them and lead the way to an appreciation of other beauties of the out-of-doors.

Ready to Arbitrate Difference Over Wages Between 98 Roads and Their Men

WASHINGTON—Members of the federal board of conciliation are hourly expecting a call to mediate the difference between the employers and engineers and firemen on 98 western roads now in conference in Chicago. The strike vote was completed yesterday, the men voting to strike if necessary to enforce their demands for wage increase.

The three members of the mediation board, William L. Chambers, Martin A. Knapp and G. W. W. Hanger, are ready to leave for Chicago at a moment's notice. It is usual that only one mediator goes to settle a dispute, but in a case so important as this all three probably will go. The conference with general managers in Chicago today may last a few hours or two or three days.

CHICAGO—Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and W. S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, who have appeared for the employees, have expressed the hope that the vote will induce the general managers' committee to reopen negotiations with the men.

Should this hope prove groundless, it was said the government might be asked to mediate under the Erdman act before a strike is ordered.

FARMERS FORSAKE WOODPILE FOR GAS FROM OWN YARDS

TOPEKA, Kan.—Farmers in the vicinity of Hymer are planning to do away with the ancient woodpile and will burn gas from wells in their own back yards, a despatch from Cottonwood Falls to the Capital says.

Since the discovery of natural gas on the Hymer school district land when the fuel was found at a depth of a little over 300 feet in a test well put down by the school district, no less than half a dozen farmers of the neighborhood are preparing to drill or have already drilled gas wells on their farms in order to supply their own homes with gas for heating and lighting purposes.

The gas is believed to come from the same sand as that reached by the Elmdale wells, and as these wells have now been supplying gas for Elmdale, Strong City and Cottonwood Falls for the past six or seven years, it is believed that gas in the Hymer field will be permanent.

MINIMUM WAGE IS FIXED IN STATE OF WASHINGTON

SEATTLE—The state minimum wage commission adopted last night a rate of $9 a week as the minimum for telephone girls throughout the state except in small exchanges.

This is the fourth minimum wage adopted by the commission, the others being $10 a week for mercantile workers, $8.90 for factory workers and $9 for laundry and dye workers.

SCHOOL APPROVED FOR CAMBRIDGE

Plans approved by Mayor Timothy W. Good of Cambridge were sent by him to the school board today for the proposed new grammar school in the Mt. Auburn district of Cambridge. This is the school named for Daniel J. Haggerty, which met with much opposition on the part of many citizens. It is to cost approximately $55,000.

To be built of brick, the structure will have cast stone trimmings. It will contain 10 rooms, an auditorium, cooking room and other accommodations, with all modern improvements. The architect is E. T. P. Graham of Boston.

ELKS OPEN THEIR GOLDEN JUBILEE AND GRAND LODGE

More Than 1000 Delegates of Possible 1600 Present—Questions the Convention Settles

DENVER, Col.—With 30 massed bands parading the streets, the fifth annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks opened today at the city auditorium. Of the 1000 members of the grand lodge, more than 1000 were present when Grand Exalted Ruler Edward Leach of New York called the session to order.

A number of questions of interest to Elksdom will be taken up. One is the appointment of a committee to investigate the origin of the order, which would issue an official report settling definitely discrepancies in the records regarding the early history of the Elks.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 Elks and their friends are here. The formal opening ceremonies were held at the auditorium Monday night.

Elks, now in session in Denver. These letters will be read to the convention and will supplement the efforts of the Boston delegates in attendance there.

ONLY WHITE GIRL IN SOUTH SEA ISLE IS HERE TO STUDY

SAN FRANCISCO—For 12 years the only white child on Nauru, otherwise Pleasant island, or within a radius of several hundred miles of that section of Micronesia, Miss Mabel D. Delaporte, the 17-year-old daughter of Rev. Philip Delaporte, a missionary teacher, arrived in San Francisco on the steamer Sierra. She was on her way to Oberlin, O., where she will enter school, the Chronicle reports.

Nauru is about a quarter degree of latitude south of the equator and 200 miles east of Gilbert island. When the Delaportes first went among them, the natives were almost savage. Ships called at the out-of-the-way place only once a year, and the little missionary family had a hard time conserving supplies. They were taken captive and threatened many times.

GUNBOATS SAIL FOR COAST OF SANTO DOMINGO

WASHINGTON—Filled with marines for possible service in Hayti and Santo Domingo the transport Hancock sailed from Veracruz today for Guantanamo. There she will be held in readiness for despatch to the Haytian coast should this become advisable.

The gunboat Sacramento left Veracruz last night and will proceed to the Haytian coast for guard duty.

Official reports to the navy department today said many refugees were boarding the Clyde line steamer Seminole at Puerto Plata, leaving Santo Domingo.

Minister Sullivan, returning to the states on orders from the state department, was aboard the Seminole, and he held a brief conference with the American consul and naval officers there.

The contract is held in the executive council with the contract for the construction of the drydock. Mr. Huddell said that 200 men now idle could secure work within a week if the pier contract were approved.

Peruvian Revolt Fails Brazil Fosters Industries

LIMA GOVERNMENT CONTROLS; OUTLOOK CALLED PROMISING

Administration Causes Arrest of Six Alleged Conspirators and Keeps Vigilant Eye on Movements of Others—Men of Prominence Absent From Republic

LIMA, Peru—With six alleged conspirators held in confinement here, the Peruvian government claims that the recently discovered plot to overthrow the administration of the provisional President, Col. Oscar Benavides, has been nipped in the bud. At the same time it is apparent that the government has not ceased to keep a vigilant eye on the movement of other men who are suspected of being the moving factors in the revolutionary disturbances.

That the uprising had been planned to take place at the military school at Chorrillos came to the knowledge of the authorities some time ago. Seditionaries had been at work among the cadets, and government men learned the names of those who were expected to lead the revolution. The six men arrested, while considered important in their respective circles, are not, it is firmly believed, the actual ringleaders. Those arrested are Maj. Cesar Landazuri, Ernesto Villanueva, Enrique Catter, Pedro R. Carrion, Luis Higginson and Carlos Oyague y Pflucker.

The police have obtained possession of a letter of a compromising nature, in that it brought into the situation one of the leading statesmen of Peru, one who until recently held a high government office. Had it not been for the connection of this personage with the revolutionary attempt the government might not have decided to take such drastic measures as are known to have been instituted.

The present whereabouts of Sr. Roberto Leguia, the vice-president of Peru under President Billinghurst, who was exiled, is causing some concern in Lima. Dr. Juan Durand, likewise conspicuous in political affairs of late, is also beyond reach, according to the authorities who are making the investigation. Both of these men a month ago took refuge in the Italian legation owing to complications that arose here in the capital following the election.

At the time of the election Dr. Leguia issued a proclamation claiming the presidency for himself by virtue of having been the vice-president at the time Sr. Billinghurst was expelled from the country. He declared that he was elected by a full congressional quorum of 83 deputies and 38 senators. These had assembled secretly in the Leguia residence.

Following out certain clues the police of Lima the day following the Chorrillos affair learned that when Dr. Leguia left the Italian legation he went to the residence of Senor Pflucker, in the Calle de Zarate. Questioned by the commandant, General Pardo, Senor Pflucker admitted that the former vice-president had been at his residence. He is said to have left the house in an automobile in the company of Sr. Agnoli, the Italian minister to Peru. In the case of Sr. Juan Durand the police have been unsuccessful in tracing his movements except to learn that he had been seen in the company of some of those now in custody.

The latest political episode takes on additional importance in view of the fact that former President Billinghurst is reported to have left Panama for Iquique, Chile, at about the same time that the revolutionary plot was laid bare. The movements of Sr. Billinghurst have been considered rather puzzling, but the present government is anxious to keep the former chief executive out of the country.

MANAGUA WILL NOT LET POLITICS SHAKE CONFIDENCE

Nicaragua's Capital Sees Bright Future for Nation When Factional Strife Ceases

MANAGUA, Nicaragua—There are a large number of people in this city who refuse to get unduly disturbed over the present political situation, and who believe that Nicaragua is inherently able to progress as soon as factional struggles cease and the country looks more fully to its own resources, rather than to any assistance it may be able to get elsewhere.

It is admitted that money is much needed. Whether a large loan should be made of such a nature as to bind the country to conditions perhaps later to be regretted is considered by many a serious question; yet confidence in the administration is not wanting.

The fertility of Nicaragua has become almost proverbial in Central America. Managua has a population nearing 50,000. Its natural situation is excellent and its location on Lake Managua, 38 miles long and 16 miles wide, lends charm to the capital of the country.

Further to the east is Lake Nicaragua. This lake is 100 miles in length and 40 miles wide. The river Tipitapa connects the two lakes. The San Juan river leads from Lake Nicaragua into the Caribbean sea. This is the river which is the cause for Costa Rica entering protest against Nicaragua effecting any treaty or loan with the United States which may jeopardize Costa Rica's riparian rights along the San Juan.

Outside the town limits of Managua are found many excellent drives. One road in particular which runs parallel with the lake toward the town of Tipitapa, a picnic place much frequented by the people of this city, affords tourists pleasure.

As one travels along this road from Managua to Tipitapa and sees the great trees spreading their interlacing branches above, and admitting glimpses of the blue water of the lake here and there between the tree trunks, one may well believe that those who dwell here are content with their environment.

PANAMA IMPROVES PUBLIC DRIVEWAYS

PANAMA—Work of grading for street use a triangular plot at the junction of Sixteenth street and Central avenue, Panama, in order to relieve congestion of traffic and decrease the sharpness of the turn at this point is under way by forces of the division of municipal engineering.

This plot was formerly in the yard of St. Paul's Anglican church, and was recently acquired by the city of Panama by purchase. It is about 35 feet long, and the street will be widened accordingly, leaving a four-foot strip for a concrete sidewalk. The area for vehicular traffic will be paved with vitrified brick, similar to the present paving of the adjacent streets.

Similar improvements are to be made at triangular corners on Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twelfth of October and Third of November streets.

ECUADOR NOW FINDS ITS ROAD NEEDS SUPPLIED

Ambato Celebrates Beginning of Railway Across the Mountains—United States Engineers Receive Praise

NEW COUNTRY OPENED

QUITO, Ecuador—At Ambato there has recently been celebrated the first anniversary of construction work on the railway now building, from Ambato across the mountains to Curaray, in the Amazon valley.

This celebration had many picturesque features connected with it. Several poems were read, bringing out, in pure Castilian, the pride taken by the people of Ecuador in the advancement of this undertaking. The civic authorities ordered a general holiday, so that the people, the school children and all those directly concerned with the work in hand, might take part in the fiesta and help to accentuate the fact that Ambato itself had loyally supported the Ecuadorian government at every step.

Speeches were made showing that, when this railway was completed, it would be the beginning of a new industrial progress not alone for Ambato but for all Ecuador, because it would give access to a new region of wonderful resources. Special thanks were expressed to the engineers and contractors from the United States, who had so sympathetically and effectively cooperated with the government in all its plans. Celebrations of this kind are popular in Spanish America, and whoever has had the pleasure of attending one knows how well the temperament of the people shows itself in them.

Ecuador is proud of this railway and feels that the United States also should share this pride, because from the beginning American engineers have had charge of it. It is a government road, organized and financed by the government, under the advice of American engineers. Every dollar of expense can be met by cash reserved from public funds so that when the road is completed it may be free from debt. The increase of wealth brought about by the opening of the new territory is expected to be more than enough to repay the investment.

Ambato, a station on the railway from Guayaquil to Quito, is at an elevation of 8500 feet. Curaray is 180 miles to the east, at an elevation of 1270 feet, but at present with communication only to the Amazon. But it is 3000 miles down the Amazon, and will be only a little over 300 miles by this railway to Guayaquil, or about 1200 miles to Panama. This area will grow all fruits from apples to bananas, most grains, and has fine pasture for cattle. Already immigration is attracted in that direction. It is expected to be one of the garden spots of South America within a few years.

SALESMEN MUST PAY TAX
ROSARIO, A. R.—The license tax required of traveling salesmen in the province of Santa Fe, including this city, is $160.84.

Preliminary, as it were, to the presidential election in 1916, the recent voting for representatives to the Panamanian national assembly is looked on as indicating the present position of Dr. Belisario Porras and his cabinet. According to the constitution no President of the republic of Panama can succeed himself. But while this eliminates Dr. Porras as a candidate two years hence it does not prevent some one close to the administration standing for election. The recent contest brought victory to the wing of which Carlos Mendoza, former President of Panama, is the leader. The political battle, in reality, was within the Liberal party itself. Control of the assembly is now vested in a following that expects to place Rodolfo Chiari in the field, as against Dr. Ramon Valdez, former minister to the United States, and who is the acknowledged candidate of President Porras.

Although the youngest American republic, Panama possesses some advantages over a number of its sister nations in Central or South America. Whatever political experience may be lacking by reason of the country's youth, counted from the day of its independence, is more than made up by other circumstances that enabled Panama to begin as a sovereign nation with ample funds on hand. The country also is now quietly advancing to the realization that, small as it is in size, great events are shaping themselves within the territory that includes the zone given over to the Panama canal. There were doubts, previous to the recent election, as to whether peace would prevail, and the government was even requested to supervise the voting with troops in readiness. However, those who predicted trouble had to suffer disappointment. The election was as orderly as if it had been held in a North American city. This fact alone shows how Panamanians are conducting themselves.

The republic of Panama became independent on Nov. 3, 1903. The first President was Gen. Manuel Guerrero, who was succeeded by Jose Domingo de Obaldia. Dr. Carlos Antonio Mendoza next filled the chair, and on Oct. 1, 1910, Dr. Pablo Arosemena became President. The third election took place in July, 1912, when Dr. Porras was chosen by an almost unanimous vote. The United States supervised the election but at the direct invitation of the Panamanian government.

PANAMA EDITOR ADVOCATES CONGRESS LIKE UNITED STATES'

Eusebio Morales, Jr., Says Better Politics Would Result From Establishment of Senate—President Porras Quick to Assert Authority in Emergency

PANAMA—Urging that the republic of Panama should have a Senate in addition to its present Assembly, Eusebio Morales, Jr., who is both the editor of El Diario and the prosecuting attorney in the superior court of Panama, claims that better politics would result from the establishment of an upper house.

Senor Morales advocates an amendment to the Panamanian constitution whereby a Senate can be made effective. Although not yet 25 years old, and therefore not eligible to become a member of the Chamber of Deputies, the youthful editor of El Diario affirms that in the case of the present deputies, many secured their election to the chamber for the purpose of obtaining other positions at the disposal of the President.

Carrying his proposal before his readers, Senor Morales says that each province should in addition have self-government, modeled after the various commonwealths of the United States. It is conceded that this idea is of value, but it is also thought that it may meet with much opposition on the part of those who favor a strong central form of government like that existing at present, where practically every official, aside from the municipalities, depends, either directly or indirectly, on the chief executive for his appointment.

The presidential election is still two years off, but the question of who is to be President Porras that he remove the alcade.

The crowd first made its demand upon Gov. Carlos Clement. Headed by a band the men marched from Santa Ana plaza. When the Governor declared he could do nothing because the proceedings lacked legal form, the opponents of the alcade proceeded to the presidential palace. Here Rodolfo Chiari, the minister of justice, appeared on the balcony and said that the President would receive a committee of four, to be selected by the crowd. The latter, however, would not agree to this. Then President Porras made his appearance. He was greeted by cries that the people demanded the removal of the alcade.

"I do not see here the people, but only a group of people," the President replied, calmly.

Garrido spoke up. "It is true, Mr. President," he said, "that this is not the people; but this group of people elected you to the presidency in 1912."

Realizing that the situation was more serious than he had thought at first, Dr. Porras threw aside all idea of temporizing with the crowd. Quickly hurrying at them question after question, he asked whether they wanted a government of law or a popular but arbitrary government. When the answer came that they wanted a lawful government he told the assemblage that the President had no power to remove alcaldes, as they are appointed by the governors of the provinces, and that if they had substantial grievances against Alcade Adames they should make them before the proper authorities.

The upshot of the whole affair was that the crowd dispersed quietly, and there were no subsequent disturbances on Santa Ana plaza, which is the gathering place for the politically dissatisfied.

MONTEVIDEO SEEN AS CITY OF MANY LOCAL INTERESTS

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay—Travelers from Argentina, particularly if the route leads directly from Buenos Aires, will find a considerable difference between the capital of Uruguay and that of the republic across the River Plate. It is soon evident that Montevideo is a city with more local interests, while Buenos Aires has world interests that make it a metropolis. The difference between the two places is much the same as that existing in the United States between such widely separated communities as Chicago and New Orleans.

Uruguay has been of much slower growth than Argentina, and this naturally makes the capital less rapid in gathering population. Unlike Argentina, there are fewer cities besides the capital with any considerable number of inhabitants. On the other hand there are many smaller towns, prosperous, well built and with ambitious people.

The financial situation in Uruguay interests strangers since the country is on a firm gold basis. One peso gold equals $1.034, or, to put it differently, 98 centavos equal $1 United States currency. There is no Uruguayan gold in circulation, however, paper at par value being the general currency. Gold coins of all countries are legal tender at values set by the government. The rate of exchange is satisfactory to travelers.

MANUFACTURING ON INCREASE IN SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLIC

Reports From Rio de Janeiro Show Forty Per Cent of Industrial Capital Invested in Making Cotton Goods—Boot and Shoe Factories Also Figure.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil—While it is correct to say that South America, including Brazil, offers to manufacturers in other lands excellent opportunities for the disposing of goods, the industrial advance made in recent years in this part of America should be taken into account when it is a question of estimating the purchasing power of these southern nations.

The Brazilian government fosters its home industries whenever it sees an opportunity to do so. The absence of any consequential coal deposits has had its effect, but on the other hand the mountainous districts possess immense water power resources. By far the most important industry at the present time is cotton-textile manufacture. It is calculated that this industry has absorbed close to 40 per cent of the entire capital invested in Brazilian manufacturing plants. The leading cities for this industry are Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Petropolis, Sorocaba, Maranhao, Fern-ambuco and Bahia. Most of the mills are located in the southern states.

Whatever the effect of the present high protective tariff on the cost of living in this country, the fact seems to be clear that without this duty manufacturing could not have made any kind of headway here. There is some talk about tariff revision, for the high prices paid for the most ordinary articles of food or for wearing apparel are causing much inconvenience. A tariff adjustment may prove a difficult thing to bring about while Brazil is still financially depressed, but economic experts here believe it would be well worth trying.

When the last census of the industrial states was taken Brazil had about 3500 manufacturing establishments, employing 175,000 persons. The capital invested was estimated at $275,000,000. After cotton goods production shoe manufacturing occupied the most prominent place among the home industries. The value of the footwear made was $11,000,000.

CARACAS, Venezuela—The electrification of the Macuto & Coast line railway has been practically completed and when finished the improvement is expected to benefit trade between Macuto and the port of La Guaira.

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador—A new market is to be built at Chinameca, which town is situated in a thickly populated section where intensive farming is carried on with marked success.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil—Lieutenant Serra Pulcherio is again actively carrying forward construction on workmen's houses, suspended temporarily some time ago.

BALBOA BUILDING IS AFFECTED BY REVISION OF FUND

BALBOA, C. Z.—Owing to the curtailing of the allotment of funds for the construction of permanent buildings at the new Balboa townsite for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1914, a reduction in the number of permanent quarters previously planned has been decided on. The plans contemplated the erection of 30 quarters of the four-family type, and 15 of the two-family type.

The change will reduce the number of the four-family type houses to 28, and the number of two-story, two-family type houses to nine; work is in progress by the permanent building division on all of these quarters at the present time. Only one of the new buildings has been completed to date, namely, a four-family quarters, house No. 702, one of the first to be begun. It is now occupied, assignment to space in it having been made by the district quartermaster to employees of the mechanical division.

All the houses of the permanent four-family type are to be numbered from 700 up, and the two-family houses from 800 up; the numbers 500 to 700 in the Ancon-Balboa district are reserved for the buildings in the silver settlement at La Boca, and the numbers below 500 for the wooden buildings in this district existing, or hereafter to be erected.

The curtailment of funds will also affect some of the proposed public buildings. The only structures in the new town of Balboa of a permanent type authorized and remaining to be erected are the railroad station, the cost of which is to be borne by the Panama railroad; the commissary, the cost of which will be paid out of the commissary funds; a combined police station and court house, and a fire station.

An election in Panama City, showing Panamanians waiting to cast their ballots

PORT TORTUGUERO TO BE DEVELOPED

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica—In view of an increased cultivation of bananas and cacao, there has been need of a further ocean outlet from here, and further to expedite trade the President has just signed a contract with Senor Francisco Quesada, providing for the development of the Port of Tortuguero on the Atlantic coast, north of Limon.

The contract is subject to the approval of the Costa Rican Congress, but no difficulties are looked for in that direction, since most of the legislators are known to favor transportation extension. In connection with the improvement of the port there will be carried out a number of railroad enterprises, the whole tending to increase cultivation in sections heretofore neglected.

CITY NOW PLANNING NEW COLLEGE

New Streets, Sidewalks and Public Structures Erected Make Last 10 Years Most Active in City's History

NEW COLLEGE TO OPEN

MARSHALL, Tex.—In the last 10 years there has been a civic activity in this city that has brought substantial improvements. Streets have been paved, and cement sidewalks laid throughout a large area. A modern high school and one of the finest city halls and fire stations in the South have been erected. The federal government appropriated $55,000 for a new postoffice and that structure is now under way. A college for boys and girls is to be another acquisition to the city.

This city has 16,000 population. It is near a large timber area and is adorned by many trees and flowers. There are several miles of street railways, affording convenient transportation. Marshall is supplied with an abundance of pure water. Natural gas is also one of the city's supplies. Near here are found clays for potteries, said to be among the best obtainable. What are considered the finest deposits of pure glass silica in the entire South are in this vicinity. One of the largest orchards in the world is only a few miles from Marshall.

The College of Marshall, which is to be the name of the city's new educational institution, will occupy a campus covering 50 acres, valued at $100,000. There are to be three administration buildings and two dormitories, one for boys and one for girls. The cost of the buildings is estimated at approximately $150,000. The administration building is to accommodate between 600 and 700 pupils. There will be a conservatory of music, department of home economics, department of domestic science and manual training at the new college.

New buildings and factories are added to the city constantly. The general shops of the Texas & Pacific railway are here. They cover more than 30 acres of land and employ about 1000 men. The general shops and offices of the M. & E. T. railway also are located in Marshall. The Marshall Car Wheel & Foundry Company is another large plant that is located here. There are five banks—two National and three state.

Marshall has a commission form of government. There are no saloons here and since 1910 prohibition has prevailed.

WHITING HALL
A Country Home
South Sudbury, Massachusetts

MANOR SCHOOL for Boys
STAMFORD, CONNECTICUT

LOCATION
On Shippan Point, eighty feet above the water of Long Island Sound. A wonderful combination of seashore and country. Every room in main building commands a view of the water. Fifteen acres of lawn, garden and grounds. The beauty of the situation is itself an inspiration.

BUILDINGS
Beautiful modern dormitory, with running hot and cold water in every sleeping room. Gymnasium 100x30 feet, with basketball courts, bowling alley, etc. School building with large study hall, class rooms, chemical and physical laboratory, manual training shops, etc. Large and attractive cottages for a limited number of young boys.

ATHLETICS
The school has a remarkable athletic record, having won twice in succession the Inter-preparatory League baseball championship, and gained many notable victories in baseball and in football. During the past year the school has besides its regular football team, four basketball teams and three baseball teams, all playing regular schedules, thus insuring the participation of a large number of boys in athletic activities.

SCHOOL WORK
A faculty of experienced college-bred teachers, working together for a common end, insures thoroughness and definiteness of school work. Weekly summing up of each boy's progress and careful consideration of each pupil's needs means the efficient handling of the particular problem of every boy's development. Under our system boys acquire a real live interest in their work, learn to apply themselves and gain a thorough preparation for college or business.

HOME LIFE
The school offers a real home to its pupils. The "institutional" atmosphere most frequently applied by parents and those who visit the school, is entirely absent. Harmonious and "homelike" are the terms most frequently used by parents and those who visit the school.

MORAL TRAINING
This school honestly endeavors to impart to its pupils the fundamentals of right living. It aims to give to every boy the instruction which most parents fail to give—it seeks to keep in close touch with the mental and moral development of its charges; it stands ready to help a boy to fight his battles, to counsel and instruct him in his studies, to give him understanding of boy problems and a sympathy with the struggles of his life. It endeavors to develop the confidence of every pupil, young or old, and to stand by him in distress, to be patient with him in defeat and to rejoice with him in victory.

RESULTS
Manor graduates are today in all the leading colleges of the country. Some of them have gained distinction for high scholarship or along literary lines; as evidenced by the fact that practically all have gained recognition as earnest, capable young men. Harvard has received more of our graduates than any other college. Columbia, University of California, University of Wisconsin, University of Michigan, Leland Stanford and other leading colleges and universities can attest the effectiveness of our methods. In business, too, many of our former pupils are occupying positions of trust and responsibility.

Stocks Rally at Close After Decline

UNSTEADY TONE FOLLOWS DROP IN SECURITIES

Price Trend in New York Market Very Uneven—California Petroleum Issues Strong Features—Baltimore & Ohio Weak

NEW HAVEN DECLINES

It is not surprising that after the sharp decline in securities the tone of the market should be unsteady today. The price trend during the early sales in New York was very irregular. Opening quotations were generally lower than last night's closing and during the first few moments there was considerable backing and filling.

The California Petroleum issues were strong features. Baltimore & Ohio was weak. There was some short covering in New Haven which caused an advance in that issue. Later it receded to a new low point.

The local market was very quiet. Price changes were without much significance.

Canadian Pacific opened down 1/4 in the New York market at 185 1/2 and after declining 1/2 further advanced more than a point. California Petroleum was up 2 1/2 at the opening at 21 1/2. It moved up to 24 and then declined a good fraction. The preferred was up a point at the opening at 56 1/2 and moved up to 59 1/2 before receding. Missouri Pacific showed further improvement.

New Haven was down 3/4 at the opening at 50 1/2. It moved up to 51 1/2 and then dropped 3 points to 53 1/2 before midday.

On the local exchange Boston & Maine sold off in sympathy with the New Haven. After opening up 1/4 at 34 1/2 it declined to 33.

Prices made some recoveries here and there during the afternoon and the tone became steadier. Denver & Rio Grande common and preferred advanced well. Boston Elevated moved above par on the local exchange after opening at 99.

AFTER EARLY SPURT LONDON SLOWS DOWN

Opening Is Strong but Securities Afterward Recede Somewhat on Lack of Business—Americans Move Sluggishly

MEXICAN RAILS OFF

LONDON—Canadian Pacific closed flat, oil shares dull, general tendency easier.

(By Boston Financial News)

LONDON—After sharp depression in the late dealings securities worked above the lowest level. Americans relied on New York influence and the recovery continued on the curb. Canadian Pacific slumped again. Domestic issues steady. Tin shares became weaker on a slump in the metals.

Oils relapsed on reported difficulties in Brussels and Amsterdam. De Beers shaded 1-16 to 16 1/2. Rio Tinto lost 1/4 to 68 1/2.

POSTPONE RACE SET FOR TODAY FOR CUP YACHTS

Defenders Will Rest Until Thursday—Unable to Finish Contest Monday Through Lack of Wind Off Newport

RESOLUTE WAS AHEAD

NEWPORT, R. I.—Following an unfinished race, the committee in charge of the trial contests of the three American cup yachts here has called off all further contests until Thursday. The cup defenders sailed two thirds of the course Monday, in the faintest of winds, quitting at the second mark because of the complete failure of the breeze. The Resolute and Vanitie had turned the buoy, with the former three minutes ahead, and the Defiance half a mile away was beating up to the mark when the contest was called.

At no time during the five hours in which the three yachts rolled in the long ground swells was the breeze over three miles an hour, and the greater part of the time it was a mere breath, besides being extremely uncertain in direction. The stray whiffs from several points of the compass on the first leg brought the only excitement of the day, as it placed each of the three yachts in turn in the lead, only completely to alter their positions in the next five minutes. Starting two seconds behind but slightly to weather, the Resolute went by the Vanitie in the first five minutes and took the lead, the Defiance being astern. Ten minutes after the start the Vanitie had crossed the bows of the Resolute and was meeting the Defiance coming offshore. Fifteen minutes after the start the Defiance had weathered the Vanitie and both were outstriking the Resolute, which had run into a soft spot. Twenty minutes after the start the Vanitie had gone by the Defiance.

Half an hour after the start the Vanitie and Defiance, sailing side by side on the starboard tack, were being hailed by the Resolute. An hour after the start the Resolute had caught and passed the other two yachts. Resolute had a six-minute lead over the Vanitie at the first turn and 10 minutes over the Defiance.

On the second leg the breeze was even lighter and more fluctuating. At one time the Resolute had a lead of nearly two miles, while the Defiance was nearly a mile ahead of the Vanitie. Nearing the second turn the Vanitie picked up a new breeze from the south which lifted her far ahead of the Defiance and well up to the Resolute. There was less than six minutes difference between the Resolute and Vanitie at the turn.

The contest was the first in the series in which the yachts failed to complete the course in the six-hour time limit, and one of the first races off Newport in many years to be called off for lack of wind.

There was very little in the contest that was of value to the America's cup committee and as the wind seemed likely to continue light and the owners and crews are desirous of two days for business and rest, the contest scheduled for today was called off. The next race will be on Thursday under the direction of the Newport Yacht Racing Association. The summary:

Fourth trial race by New York Yacht Club. Sailed off Newport and uncompleted for lack of wind. Course 30 miles, triangular. First leg a beat; second leg a reach and beat. Wind three miles at start and first turn; two miles at second turn. Weather, clear. Sea, rolling. Tide, ebb.

RATIONAL GOLF

By STEVEN ARMSTRONG

Once again our ladies' column refers to a foreign championship, and once more Miss Cecil Leitch has proved her right to golfing titles. After trying unsuccessfully for five years she won her first one, the French, in 1913, but having once made a beginning, she has certainly wasted no time and three national titles won in five weeks is something of a record: the British, English and now the French again.

Her opponent in the final of the English was also runner-up in the French a few weeks later, and once more held her more famous rival to 2 and 1 in a 36-hole match which reflects the greatest credit on Miss Bastin and places her at once among the favorites for future events. Miss Bastin, like Miss Cecil Leitch, came heralded to her first tournament though but a slip of a girl with her hair in a braid. This was at the Turnberry tournament in 1912 which I was so fortunate as to be able to see and at which I met so many of the great women players, an experience that has been of the utmost value to me in that I have since been able to follow their progress much more easily than I otherwise should have been able to do.

Miss Bastin was pointed out to me as the possible surprise of the tournament so I watched her play some shots one morning, coming to the conclusion that she seemed to know how each should be played, and it would probably be only a question of gaining experience in big matches before she did something notable. This appears to have been the case, for though she played some good golf last year she was not able to win anything of importance, but in the English she tied Miss Barry for the medal in the qualifying round, and 87 over Walton Heath is good golf for any girl, working her way through to the final as we saw before, she put up a splendid fight against Miss Leitch. No doubt this helped her in the necessary confidence in the French event for she led nearly the whole day and was 2 up and 6 to go, but once more Miss Leitch indulged in a whirlwind sort of finish and ended the match on the seventeenth green.

Miss Bastin, like the great Silloth player, is fairly tall and strongly built, indeed many of those athletic young British girls play golf very much like a man, and the snap of their iron shots reminds one of a professional in its dash. The new Welsh lady champion, Mrs. Phelps, made a plucky fight against Miss Bastin in the semi-final of the French tournament and lost only at the nineteenth.

Perhaps, as we have been referring to the golf of the land of the fleur-de-lis, the ladies will forgive me if I take up a few lines in their columns to say that the professional event of that country has again been won by a Britisher. Duncan has again fallen behind the record set by Miss Cecil Leitch, for he was not successful in defending his French title won last year.

The new French champion is very new indeed, as few people have ever heard his name, for he is quite young and has up till now never been counted among first class golfers. J. B. Edgar from Newcastle-on-Tyne is his name, and his victory at Le Touquet was the result of what is described as "mechanical steadiness," and his extraordinary total of 288 for that difficult course is considered marvelous for 72 holes. So it must be indeed, for Vardon, the six-times British champion, was 294; Ray, former champion of Britain was third with 295; Taylor and Braid, each five-times British champions, were fourth and fifth with 296 and 301 respectively, so it will be seen that Edgar won from the four greatest golfers in the world by the safe margin of six strokes. Truly a wonderful performance; a Oulmet among the professionals has arisen.

The women's championship of southern India has just been won by Mrs. J. A. Cruickshank of Coonoor, better known in the golfing world as Miss Dora Jenkins, Scottish champion 1912, one of the most brilliant golfers Scotland ever produced and sister of J. L. C. Jenkins, the new British champion.

LARCHMONT HAS GREAT FLEET OUT

LARCHMONT, N. Y.—One hundred and twenty-four yachts sailed in the second regatta of the annual race week of the Larchmont Yacht Club Monday. The wind was light and from the south-east.

The winners of the more important classes were: The schooners Wenona, the Duchs, Little Rhody II, Rohla Nadia, Twinkle, Margaret, Lewanna, Yaqui, Dipper, Vege, Merry Widow, Bista, Cyrie Heron, Mlle. Boss, Avis, Halcyon, Dart, Virginia Mae, Barnacle and the Butterfly Papillon.

POSTPONE PLAY IN TENNIS MEET

CINCINNATI—Conditions interfered to a considerable extent with the play in the fifth annual clay court tennis championship tournament on the courts of the Cincinnati Golf Club Monday.

The principal event was the appearance on the courts of Miss Mary Browne of California, national champion ladies' singles. Miss Browne won the first set from Miss Mary Kemper of Cincinnati 6 to 0. At this juncture the match was postponed.

(Special Cable to the Monitor)

LONDON—In the tennis doubles match at Wimbledon Monday Decimus and Gernot of France defeated Roper Barrett and Mavrogordato of England in the second round of the Davis cup competition by three sets to one, 6-3, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4.

The Frenchmen were easily the better pair. The remaining singles matches will be played today, and the Englishmen must win one in order to secure the tie.

WANT RIGHT TO DRAFT STOPPED

SAN FRANCISCO—In a resolution adopted Monday the directors of the Pacific Coast league requested the national baseball commission to cancel the right of draft from the Coast league now held by the National and American leagues.

Too many good players developed in the Coast league are lost to it as soon as they show promise, the directors believe.

GERMAN TENNIS TEAM WILL PLAY AT SEWICKLEY, PA.

Winnings of Australasian-Canadian Ties July 30, 31, Aug. 1

NEW YORK—The German Davis cup tennis team, consisting of Otto Froitzheim and Oscar Kretzner, will meet the winning nation of the Australasian-Canadian ties in the second round of the international cup series on the turf courts of the Allegheny Country Club at Sewickley, a suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa., July 30, 31 and Aug. 1.

Robert D. Wrenn, chairman of the Davis cup committee of management, made the announcement. Wrenn has not received word as to when the German players will arrive in this country.

It was pointed out by the committee that the entry of the Germans into the competitions made it certain that four of the challenging nations, the British Isles, Australasia, Canada and Germany, would be represented in the international matches in this country.

It is the first time in the history of the Davis cup that more than one visiting nation has appeared in the United States.

Australasia and Canada will meet on the courts at Onwentsia, near Chicago, July 23, 24 and 25. The next week the winning nation will move to the Allegheny Country Club to meet the Germans.

W. M. Johnston, spoken of by many as the successor to M. E. McLoughlin, who arrived from California a few days ago, was defeated by Robert Leroy, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4. The young Californian could not steady his driving, and Leroy, a master at strategy, always kept him moving. It is thought that Johnston's defeat will cost him a place on the Davis cup team.

R. N. Williams, 2d, who performed so ably with McLoughlin in winning the trophy last year, narrowly escaped losing to W. M. Hall. Williams never really struck his form. He missed his recoveries, and but for Hall's failure to deliver the decisive strokes he would have been defeated. He won by the narrow margin of 7-5, 7-5.

Another surprise was the defeat of H. H. Hackett, captain of the 1913 team, whose weak volleys were smothered by L. E. Mahan at 6-1, 5-1, retired. R. L. Murray, the other Californian, won by default. The summary:

FIRST ROUND
G. P. Galdner, Jr., defeated G. L. Wrenn, Jr., 6-1, 6-2.
A. S. Dabney defeated Leonard Beekman, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Pitcher Walsh of the Chicago Americans took part in his first full game of the season yesterday and won from New York 2 to 0.

The Cubs cut down the Giants' lead yesterday. Pitcher Vaughn showing great form for the winners. Only 2½ games now separate the two teams.

S. A. McDonald has been appointed manager of the Springfield Eastern Association team to succeed W. A. Hamilton. McDonald formerly handled the Hartford club.

Managers Birmingham of the Cleveland Americans has a very promising recruit pitcher in Morton. Although he lost his game to Boston yesterday, he showed fine form.

Walter Johnson of Washington gave another wonderful exhibition of pitching yesterday when he held Detroit to three singles and no runs and struck out 10 men.

Another victory for the Boston Nationals. They have now won five of the six games played on this western trip and are drawing up close to the other second division teams.

SNOW TO COACH TEXAS ELEVEN
W. J. Snow, fullback on the Dartmouth varsity football team, will coach the University of Texas football candidates in the fall. Snow is at his home in Winthrop, and expects to leave for the South shortly after Labor day.

ROWAN GOES TO CHATTANOOGA
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—Harry McCormick of the Chattanooga club has secured Pitcher Rowan from the Cincinnati Nationals. The purchase price was not given. He will report immediately.

It is supposed that with the release of Reed to Columbus the Philadelphia Nationals will get Shortstop Gerber, the American Association star whom they have been trying for during the last month.

UPWARD STEPS OF THE GOOD MAN

WRITTEN FOR THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

EVERY normal individual desires to be good, desires to be better than he is at any stage of his progress. True goodness is different from a weakly, sentimental, or affected sense of good. Jesus was without doubt the best man who ever lived, yet when the young man addressed him as "Good Master" he replied: "Why callest thou me good? there is none good but one, that is, God." Jesus was not denying his own goodness, but pointing out that the goodness reflected by man is not a personal possession, that it belongs to and proceeds from God, divine Love. It is right that we should ever strive to reflect infinite good, God, more and more.

It has often been said that there is some goodness in every one. This goodness is the evidence of one's true spiritual individuality. Although it may seem to be slight it indicates the infinite good which the true man reflects just as a little speck of precious metal shining above ground oftentimes marks the presence of unlimited treasures below. Our human footsteps toward a higher demonstration of goodness begin from right where we stand. If other people seem to be better and more spiritual than we this is no occasion for envy or discouragement. On the contrary we can rejoice with them in their victory over evil. Their triumphs prove that we, too, can overcome still further. If others do not seem to have traveled along the road as far as we have this is no reason for despising them. God has given us freely of His blessings so that we may share them freely with our brethren. The natural result of a progressive life is that it helps others along in the same direction.

A true understanding of God, however slight, insures an upwardly progressive life. A stagnant condition of thought results from a misconception of God. Christian Science as explained in the textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, reveals the fact that God is perfect

Mind and that man is the perfect image and likeness of perfect Mind. But while this is the unchanging truth now and always mortals attain unto the full recognition of this truth step by step. These steps in spiritual understanding are governed by God. The Psalmist says: "The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord."

It is encouraging to know that even while God may seem to mortals to be very far off from human affairs He is really ever present, governing, directing, and ruling over all. Evil may sometimes appear to human sense to have the right of way but this human sense does not tell the truth and must therefore yield to a divine sense. Nothing can be plainer than this, that the way of the man who strives to be good is ultimately blessed, while the way of the wilfully wicked proves to be a hard one.

While it is true that God is governing our steps even while we know it not, it is also true that our progress is always quicker when we are fully conscious of this fact because we can more intelligently reflect God in our lives. As we advance spiritually this progress is manifest outwardly. To strive for the outward manifestation without the necessary spiritual preparation is vain. Mrs. Eddy, with clear perception resulting from long years of deep spiritual experience, has given valuable advice that has helped many to walk wisely along life's highway. In "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 117) she writes: "The disobedient make their moves before God makes His, or make them too late to follow Him. Be sure that God directs your way; then, hasten to follow under every circumstance."

While stepping onward and upward it is right that we should fully enjoy all the harmony of our present experience. Otherwise we should be as those whose only hope is in a future-world salvation. The harmony and joy we experience today through spiritual understanding may be slight compared with that which lies before us. Nevertheless it is right to appreciate these partial blessings to their fullest extent.

It is also right to be patient as we step on toward better things. It is vain to expect to gather fruit from a pear tree while it is still in bloom and unwise to gather the fruit prematurely. In due time the harvest season comes when the luscious fruit is gathered.

So it is with regard to spiritual growth. We must diligently cultivate all our opportunities for spiritual development. The hard soil of material belief must be loosened so that the rains of spiritual refreshment may reach the very roots of thought. Unnecessary activities, selfish interests and erroneous beliefs must be pruned away. In due time the blossom appears. The season of blossoming has a beauty of its own. It gives glad promise of a bounteous harvest. But we need not, cannot, linger there. The blossoming of spiritual understanding is but a step toward the fuller development of the fruit of the Spirit, which, St. Paul tells us, "is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance."

These are unfailing evidences of spiritual progress. These blessings are here now to be enjoyed by each one of us. Let us, therefore, turn from the contemplation of evil and direct our steps toward goodness. Even from the outset we shall prove that these steps are "ordered by the Lord"—guided and governed by divine Love, the unfailing Principle of all good.

The West Land

O to lie in long grasses!
O to dream of the plain!
Where the west wind sings as it passes
A weird and unceasing refrain;
Where the rank grass wallows and tosses,
And the plains' ring dazzles the eye;
Where hardly a silver cloud bosses
The flashing steel arch of the sky.

To watch the gull gulls as they flitter
Like snowflakes and fall down the sky,
To swoop in the depths of the hollows,
Where the crow's foot tosses awry.
And gnats in the lee of the thickets
Are swirling like waltzers in glee
To the harsh, shrill creak of the crickets,
And the song of the lark and the bee.

O far off plains of my west land!
O lands of winds and the free...
Your light through my darkness passes;
To your meadows in dreaming I fly
To plunge in the depths of your grasses,
To bask in the light of your sky.
—Hamlin Garland.

The Reason Why

"O happy birds among the boughs,
And silver tinkling brook below,
Why are you glad,
Though skies look sad?"
"Ah, why? And would you know?"
"A pleasant song to me replied;
For some one else we sing,
And that is why the woodlands wide
With rapture 'round us ring."

"O daisies crowding all the fields,
And twinkling grass, and buds that grow,
Each glance you greet
With smiles so sweet!"
"And why—ah, would you know?"
"Their beauty to my heart replied;
For some one else we live;
And nothing in the world so wide
Is sweeter than to give."

—George Cooper.

Lion of Gibraltar Rock

Gibraltar seen for the first time by night from Algiers is the embodiment of romantic mystery with its rows of lights twinkling on the impregnable fortress rock which looms in shadow behind them. Over the shining waters of the bay it remains a fascination by daylight though the mystery has lifted and the outlines are sharp and clear in the southern atmosphere. Gibraltar works on all our imaginations and I fear that in the matter of zoological comparison, says a writer in the Egyptian Mail, we are apt to talk nonsense. One has often heard the Rock compared to a lion, but if a lion it be, it is difficult to know at which end of it is to be found what Borrow in language of admirable energy has called "its blasted and perpendicular brow." The Bible Society's agent had himself no doubt that "its stupendous head menaces Spain." Thackeray, on the other hand, says that Gibraltar is "the very image of an enormous lion crouched between the Atlantic and the Mediterranean and set there to guard the passage for its British mistress." If the lion guards the straits, its head is presumably turned towards them and Africa. Gautier saw no lion, but a sphinx: "La tete, un peu tronquée, est tournée vers l'Afrique, qu'elle semble regarder avec une attention revenue et profonde."

Little Helper

There was a woman once hanging clothes to dry. Her baby came, up and took a pillowcase from the basket, dragged it along and held it up for her to hang. It did not help her much, for she had the pillowcase to wash over again, but she caught up the baby and hugged and kissed him as if he had been a washer, wringer and mangle all in one. —Gail Hamilton.

Daniel Webster Home at Marshfield, Mass.

THROUGH the recent unveiling of two tablets commemorative of Daniel Webster at his home in Massachusetts, one by the Alumni Association of Boston University law school, and the other by the Daughters of the American Revolution, public attention has again been drawn to the Webster farm, where the statesman lived for so many years.

Although extensively remodeled and modernized in appearance, the house which is usually referred to as the "home" of Daniel Webster, still stands in Marshfield, Mass., some 30 miles from Boston. Here, in the midst of a modest estate that once comprehended some 2000 acres of marshy, undulating land sloping down to the margin of the sea, stands the pleasant abode that was described by a writer in 1852 as the "mansion," and which was surrounded in those days by a half dozen outbuildings, including the residence of the chief tenant, the dairyman's cottage, the fisherman's cottage, the landlady's agricultural cottage, and the gardener's house. In the days of the residence of the distinguished statesman here the flower garden presented to the eye an acre of rare and beautiful plants against a background of great tracts of forest trees, many of which were planted by Webster when he first came to Marshfield.

The raising of fine cattle was Mr. Webster's agricultural hobby, and we are told by a contemporary writer that "it was a rare treat to take a walk with him over his grazing fields or through the spacious yards adjoining his overflowing barns, and to hear him descend upon the beauty and goodness of his Alderney cows, with their gazel-like eyes, or the brilliant color of his Devon oxen."

Rose Always a Rose

"The June garden roses beggar all praise. Adieu to waxy perfections of the hothouse! Under the skies of June the royal lady of the garden comes into her own. Crimson, rose and cream and gold and white, though the shape and color and name may be varied forever, a rose is always a rose—except, possibly, when it is a rambler. The rambler is hardly satisfactory viewed as a rose, for it lacks fragrance. It is charming as a rambler and wins deserved exclamations, massed over fence or hedge or trellis. But given the rose's shape and color and perfume few care to spell out the foolish personal name—Frau this or Caroline that—intruded on her who need but write herself Rosa R.—queen of all the floral world, and Flora's very self!"

Bell's Telephone and Its Introduction Into England

NO man could be more British than Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone. Bell was born in Edinburgh and educated in London. His father was Alexander Melville Bell. His grandfather had taught the laws of speech in London University. When young Bell was 22 he came to London, we learn from a long and interesting article on the story of the telephone in the Times. Here he met two distinguished men, Alexander J. Ellis, president of the Philological Society, and Sir Charles Wheatstone. These two men befriended Bell and gave him the ideas which, several years later, resulted in the invention of the telephone. To Ellis Bell owed his knowledge of certain experiments of Helmholtz, showing that tuning forks could be kept in vibration by the power of electro magnets. To Sir Charles Wheatstone Bell owed his knowledge of telegraphy and his passion for invention. Also, Bell was permitted to see, at the home of Sir Charles Wheatstone, a most ingenious talking machine which had been contrived by Baron de Kempelen.

In 1870 Bell and the rest of the family set sail from Glasgow, and took up their residence in the small Canadian town of Brantford. From here he soon went to Boston, and on March 10, 1876, he succeeded in sending spoken words along an electrified wire.

Bell invented the telephone first and alone. His main help had come from his father, who had taught him the laws of acoustics; from Sir Charles Wheatstone, who had started him on the path of invention; from Faraday, who discovered the phenomena of magnetic induction, and from Sturgeon, who had produced the first electro magnet. With the single exception of Berliner, who invented a type of transmitter, all the pioneers of telephony were British. John J. Carty, greatest of all telephone engineers, was born in Ireland. Lookwood, chief protector of the Bell patents, was born in Manchester. The others bore such names as Hubbard, Sanders, Blake, Watson, Forbes, Hudson, Fish, Scribner and Barton.

Early in 1877 the telephone was introduced in England. It made its debut in a blaze of glory. Lord Kelvin attended the first demonstration of telephony at the Philadelphia centennial in 1876. He was enraptured with the new contrivance, and the impulsive Bell presented him with the original telephone instruments. These were brought to England and exhibited by Lord Kelvin before the British Association for the Advancement of Science. "Bell himself addressed the association and received a vociferous welcome. Several days later Queen Victoria expressed a desire to talk by telephone. Accordingly a wire was put up from a Downing street office to the city house of Sir Thomas Bidulph. She congratulated Bell himself, who was present. A few weeks later a wire was put up to Windsor castle, and a tiny telephone exchange with 10 wires was started in London. An order for 100 telephones was sent to Boston, and so, under the most favorable auspices, the telephone service of Great Britain began.

Small Town Neighbors

Those who are doubtful about the joys of living in a small town, says the Kansas City Times, listen to what Lee Shippey has to say on the subject in the Higginsville Jeffersonian: "This is the time of year when life is pleasantest in a country town and neighbors are most neighborly. We can sit on our porches in the cool of the evening and 'visit,' we can exchange greetings with all who pass, and all the summer long we live in a pleasant atmosphere of human fellowship."

The account next pictures the coming of a neighbor bearing a vessel filled "with new potatoes, stringbeans, beets, lettuce, or some other honest joy of life fresh plucked from that kind of neighbor's garden. And on the morrow the good wife returns the vessel, laden with cherries from our trees. And each time the bearer of gifts lingers for a pleasant chat. Ah, yes; we small town folks come far nearer than do most of our city friends to loving our neighbors as ourselves."

Learning at Home

All that we can learn at a university we can learn from printed books and journals. It is from books and journals that college professors get their knowledge, or most of it. In a good public library the same sources of information are open to any one who cares to look for them. He will not find it on the ball field or in the best selling novels. It means real study, and study is not confined to schools. One can be a worthy and successful student at home.—The Independent (New York).

Lesson in Supply and Demand

The children in the lower grades of a state normal school were engaged in raising carrots. The teacher in charge had given them this task with a view to combining instruction upon several points. The practical lesson in gardening was to be supplemented by lessons in weighing and measuring the yield, in fixing the price after investigating the state of the market, in selling to grocer or parent, and in making out a bill in regular form.

All went well, says the Journal of Education, until the crop was ready for the market when the children found there was no price on carrots, the grocer never so many, the parents never bought any; no one in the community ate carrots.

It was a condition and not a theory that confronted the teacher, but she preferred conditions to theories. The domestic economy teacher often cooked and served that which the children raised, paying for it for demonstration purposes. So this teacher purchased some of the carrots, had her cooking class prepare them in cream in a delicious manner, and served them to teachers and pupils. All pronounced them highly pleasing. Children besought their parents to get the recipe and cook carrots, and the class could not begin to supply the demand. Next season there will be carrots in every garden in the vicinity.

Income Tax Receipts Satisfactory

NOTWITHSTANDING the many gloomy predictions recorded from time to time in quarters politically antagonistic to the Wilson administration, it would seem that the income tax, corporate and individual, is going to justify the estimates. From the first of the present month the collections have been steadily increasing. By the time the books close there is hardly a doubt that the total collected will be in excess of the $75,000,000 promised by the secretary of the treasury. This seems an all the more reasonable conclusion in view of the fact that up to June 30 the corporation, excise and income taxes combined had yielded $71,886,156.13 for the fiscal year.

It is only just to the party in power, and to the administration that is carrying out the policies of that party, to credit both with no ordinary achievement in financing. They were compelled to deal largely with new and unusual conditions, the result of changes of their own making in the revenue-producing methods of the nation. While it cannot be truthfully said that they were forced to deal with unknown quantities, it is not going too far to say that in the making of their estimates they were compelled to abandon almost wholly the lines followed for fifteen years by their predecessors. It was absolutely necessary to an intelligent understanding of the situation confronting them that they should have accurate figures bearing upon the deficit to be caused by reduction of duties and upon the yield from the income tax that was intended to make this deficit good.

From present appearances, whatever criticism may be directed toward the policies of the Wilson administration, or toward the Democratic party as a whole, its mathematics are unassailable. The most accomplished chancellors of the exchequer of our times have not, it would seem, come nearer a perfect adjustment of estimates to revenues than has been accomplished by the ways and means committee and the treasury department. The receipts from duties have fallen off no more than was anticipated; the income tax gives evidence at this time of yielding all that was expected of it. In this particular some evidence of popular appreciation would not be out of place. If criticism is sometimes wholesome and helpful, so also is applause.

Real Estate Dealers' Ideals

WHEN at the Winnipeg convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges a code of ethics for the business was agreed upon, the custom was fixed of making moral as well as technical questions part of the routine debate of the annual gathering. While the 10,000 copies of the code distributed over the land have been doing their missionary work the dealers have been experimenting with some of the standards therein defined; and they work better than it was thought they might. Business is found to be something more than business. It is profit plus goodwill.

Realizing this delegates now insist upon making the program include topics that make for uplift as well as for expansion. Hence at the recent Pittsburgh convention much was said about honest advertising. That some printed descriptions of suburban land schemes, of western irrigation projects and southern fruit plantations are not veracious was conceded. A dealer's responsibility to a buyer was admitted. "Caveat emptor" was declared to be an ideal as untenable today as its phrasing was classic. Plans were made to back up the association's committee on fraudulent advertising.

Fortunately as the work proceeds these middlemen whose duty is to arrange real property transfers will find conditions also improving in the press where they seek publicity. With professional advertising men committed to the standards of the recently adopted Toronto platform and with business men in their national group assemblies discussing honest advertising, the publishers who admit suspicious or specious advertising to their columns are to become scarcer. Purely as a matter of policy they are coming to meet the rising demand of the "ultimate consumer," for truth.

The State and the Press

TO PROTECT the interests of the state and promote general welfare, government, backed by public opinion, is extending its control of the press, in times of war and in times of peace. Sometimes the motive is to suppress truth which highest policy of state decides should not become public. Such a case is now attracting attention owing to the formal charges brought against a California publisher for use of photographs taken by aviators flying over the Panama Zone fortifications now being constructed and equipped. In other cases the motive for formal, rigorous governmental action is refusal to countenance distribution of news to readers which, in the opinion of officials stationed abroad as the army and navy officers now are at Veracruz, is not based on facts and sent in good faith. The arrest of a correspondent in Mexico, for an alleged offense of this kind, will center attention on the importance of the issue at stake.

The Monitor has commented more than once on causes operating to make more drastic control of the movements and comments of war correspondents. The national defense act of 1911 indicated that Congress had met the demands of the military strategists at Washington, which, in turn, were based on the wisdom garnered by students of measures resorted to by other powers in recent wars. It is under the authority of this law that action is now being taken in Mexico and in California. The theory is being given some practical tests.

Inasmuch as no journalist with any loyalty to his native or adopted land for the sake of a "beat" would deliberately disclose military secrets to be used by other nations, it is not likely that the government will be called upon often to enforce a law which in theory is so unassailable. What must follow, however, is clearer definition and as wide acceptance as possible of rules governing flight of aircraft over military reservations in times of peace. Aerial scouting has come to stay. It must be standardized.

As to concentration of power in censors' hands making possible discipline of correspondents who send forth baseless rumor and thereby mislead opinion, it is obviously defensible, conditioned however by the right of public opinion to censor the censors. Their purity of motive must be guarded if they are to have such power. In eliminating the sensational journalist from the area of combat or of armed neutrality the military official should not hamper the independent, sincere, truth-loving journalist—critic of friend as well as foe. The people who furnish the soldiers and who pay the taxes need representatives at the front acting as eyes.

It is now four years since the thirteenth United States census was taken; since then the work of abstracting useful information from the original forms has been continuous. The report on occupations has just been made public. It shows that of the entire population of 93,402,151 in the United States, including Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and military and naval stations abroad, 38,756,223, or 41.5 per cent, were engaged in gainful callings. This great figure, practically, stands for the number of persons who give their thought, time and energy to some kind of labor. In a broad sense, it represents the producing element of the population, although further analysis might show many classes of varying degrees of usefulness. In continental United States alone the number of persons in gainful occupations numbered 38,167,336, which, on the basis of 91,972,266 population, yielded exactly the same percentage return, showing that the proportion of workers to non-workers throughout the whole territory is the same.

Perhaps the most encouraging fact revealed by these statistics is that the proportion of the total population engaged in gainful occupations has increased gradually from 34.7 per cent in 1880 to 41.5 per cent in 1910. A peculiar circumstance in this connection is the showing that the increase was least rapid from 1890 to 1900, and most rapid from 1900 to 1910. It is also interesting that the proportion of the population ten years of age and over engaged in gainful occupations in 1910 ranged from 46.9 per cent in Iowa to 68 per cent in Mississippi, and, having in mind the distinctive character of their common labor, it is significant that the states showing the largest increases of working percentage were Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, Nevada, North Carolina, South Carolina and Texas. With one exception—Nevada—all of these are southern, and in all of them, with the exception noted, the negro is a determinant industrial factor.

One other point is of present importance, namely, that, roughly stated, one fifth of all the workers in the United States are women. The exact figures show that male workers in 1910 numbered 30,091,564; female, 8,075,772, the percentage being 78.8 as against 21.2. Only in domestic and personal service did the women outnumber the men, the proportion being more than two women to one man. In professional service there were four women employed for every five men, a large proportion of the women in this class being teachers. In clerical occupations, one third of the persons employed were women. Data which would show comparisons with other census years and enable us to see whether fewer or more women relatively are working, or what, if any, gains they are making in grades of occupation, seem to be lacking for the present. General observation, however, will for most people furnish satisfactory information on this score. It may be safely assumed, at all events, that in no sense is woman falling behind in her friendly competition with man; rather the contrary.

Training the City Boy for the Farm

RUFUS STANLEY of Elmira, N. Y., did well to bring the subject of training the city boy for the farm before the National Education Association convention at St. Paul, Minn. It is a subject that has been much discussed and debated; it is a subject in the discussion and debate of which theory has played much the greater part until quite recently. Of late years public school boards and public school instructors have been taking the practical side of it, and generally with very satisfactory results. The garden is now a common attachment of the public school. It would be hard to say how little or how great an influence school gardening has had upon public school pupils, but one fact stands out prominently in this connection, namely, that the attendance at agricultural schools and colleges is increasing constantly.

If there is any fault in the school garden plan it lies in a tendency on the part of the pupils to regard the work as play. Like all other diversions of childhood, school gardening holds the interest of boys and girls for a while only. From Mr. Stanley's remarks we take it that he would give public school instruction on agricultural subjects a far more serious turn. Getting seasonable results from garden planting is, of course, attractive to adults as well as to minors, but farmers are not made in this way. There is need of finding boys in the town and city schools who have a taste for the farm, and of giving them a thorough grounding in the fundamentals. We believe nine tenths of all the poor farming in the United States today is due to popular entertainment of the fallacy that it is only necessary to know a little about farming in order to farm successfully.

The farming community of the United States is learning very rapidly that farming is a trade, that it is not a calling one is born to, that it cannot be mastered offhand, that it demands training of as exact and exacting a character as that required by any other trade or profession. Farmers who have been successful to the point of acquiring riches are among the most enthusiastic supporters of agricultural education. What they have learned has come to many of them through tedious and costly experience which they now see may be avoided by instruction in the schools.

As a very large percentage of farm-bred boys find their chosen vocations in the cities, so a very large percentage of city-bred boys, if properly directed, might find congenial employment for their talents in the country. The cities are recruited largely from the country; the country, we believe, should be correspondingly recruited from the city. Equipped with a better understanding of his task, the city boy entering upon a career of farming would be saved a tremendous amount of needless effort and many expensive mistakes.

FURTHER economies in expenditures at Washington will further minimize the danger of a deficit.

Workers in the United States

THERE are various phases of the going-away-for-the-summer and the staying-at-home-for-the-summer problems, and it is doubtful if any two of them can be presented with anything like equal force to the same person at the same time. It is next to impossible, that is, for a person who is going or has gone away for the summer to enter into entire sympathy with a person who has not gone and is not going away for the summer, and vice versa. The attitude of thought of the person who is away for the summer is wholly different, as a rule, from the attitude of thought of the person who is at home for the summer. On the question of the desirability of being away or of remaining at home there is seldom any point of contact between them, although both may arrive through different periods of the summer at practically the same conclusions.

Consequently it would be folly to attempt to lay down any hard and fast proposition with respect to the relative comfort and satisfaction of the persons who go away for the summer and the persons who stay at home. If it be held that the persons who go away have on the whole a better time than the persons who stay at home, then it may be retorted that nobody who has not spent a summer at home is qualified to judge on this point. If, on the other hand, it be held that the persons who stay at home have on the whole a much better time than those who go away, it may be retorted that only those who have had experience in both ways are competent to decide the question.

It is not within our province nor is it our desire to say which is the better plan—to go away for the summer or to stay at home. The subject is a delicate one. It is one on which people who go away and people who stay at home are equally sensitive. The person who is thankful today that he (or she) is home, where he (or she) may go and do as he (or she) pleases, may for many and well understood reasons be wishing tomorrow that he (or she) were away, and, again, vice versa. Circumstances have everything to do with it. It will not do to jump at conclusions. Being away, as everybody knows, has advantages as well as disadvantages, and this is true likewise of being at home.

For example, in these times when everybody who can goes away for the summer, those who remain at home have opportunities of enjoying in their respective neighborhoods a quiet, a repose, a peace that cannot be had for money at any popular or fairly popular summer resort. With the next door neighbors on both sides and across the street, or, if in an apartment, the neighbors above and below, all gone—with the street as empty by day as by night, with nobody to ring at the doorbell or call on the telephone—with no danger of anybody inviting one out or of anybody coming in to spend the evening—the tranquillity of summer residence in town is all but complete. And yet to many this tranquillity is not altogether welcome. They think it dull and long to get away with the rest.

A COMMUNITY-PAID wage for service rendered is all that an official is entitled to legally. Duty and payment being defined, and the one having been rendered and the other tendered and accepted, a transaction is completed creditable to all concerned. If later, in recognition of long and faithful service, a pension or a retiring allowance follows, then the town or city will have lived up to most advanced contemporary ideals of justice. Justice, however, is not the only element entering into man's civic relations. The employee or public official volunteers for his duty with something besides his wage or his salary in his thought. He reckons on the approval of his fellow citizens as part of his reward, and he appreciates it whether it is shown formally or informally. This fact is not always reckoned with by the average citizen in his attitude toward the public servants whose support he pays taxes.

Whenever in any town or city citizens as such come into close, friendly relations with officials and employees, and give the latter the reward that is higher than the wage, namely, appreciation of good service, then efficiency of administration increases. The employee rises, morally if not technically, from the perfunctory worker and servant to the point of cooperation when he gets sympathy and praise from householders and merchants as well as dollars and cents from the treasury.

The text for this homily happens to be found in the way the marketmen and traders of a downtown section of New York city, bounded by Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets and the rivers, treat the street cleaners who patrol the territory. The thrifty citizen and the efficient employee get closer together than usually is the case. Men who can sweep well are made to understand that the fact is appreciated by men who can barter well. Personal records of efficiency are kept, and once a year, with the mayor present if possible, medals are conferred and the honors won in humble tasks are announced. The city still pays the wages, but citizens award medals.

A comparative study of conditions in this district and other sections of the city lacking any such form of affiliation might be illuminating. Viewed from the low plane of sectional and business selfishness the policy seems to have merit. Judged by higher standards we cannot see why it is not generally commendable.

THE fact that there was a shrinkage of more than $3,000,000 in the net earnings of the express companies of the United States in the last year, owing to parcel post competition, should spur those corporations on to even greater efforts than they are already making in the matter of helping to bring about a better distribution of the nation's products.

CLAY CENTER, KAN., has made the first shipment of flour milled from this year's wheat crop. It is evident that, notwithstanding its temptation to pause a little that it may joyously contemplate its prosperity, Kansas is going to miss no opportunities this year in the line of thrift.

DETROIT now proposes the organization of an hydro-aeroplane company to operate flying machines for hire. This, perhaps, is to be only an educational movement, as eventually, no doubt, Detroit will be turning out a popular hydroplane for sale at a popular price.

COAL is beginning to exhibit what the market reporters would call an upward tendency, the reason given being that the coal men desire to stimulate buying in dull times. As if times could ever be really dull for those who pay coal bills.
